HUNGARY BLAMED FOR MARSEILLES MURDERS

THREE STATES MAKE DEFINITE CHARGE

LEAGUE EFFORT TO END TENSION

ECHO OF ASSASSINATION OF KING ALEXANDER

STRONG RESENTMENT IN BUDAPEST

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Nov. 23, 7.35 a.m.)

Geneva, Nov. 22.

Charges that Hungary bears a large share of the responsibility for the murder of King Alexander of Yugo-Slavia have been made before the League of Nations, and there is resentment in Budapest against the allegation. The voices of three states are raised against Hungary, however, and the League will endeavour to clear the air by hearing the whole matter discussed by representatives of the states principally concerned.

There is, admittedly, some considerable tension in the Balkans.

The Government of Yugo-Slavia has written a letter to the League of Nations declaring that the Marseilles assassinations have revealed "grave and striking responsibilities on the part of the Hungarian authorities."

"It is thanks to this complicity on the part of Hungarians that the odious act at Marseilles was able to be perpetrated," says the Yugo-Slavian Government, referring to the murder of King Alexander and M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister.

JOIN IN PROTEST

Czechoslovakia and Rumania have both sent letters to the League of Nations supporting Yugo-Slavia, saying that the situation revealed at Marseilles directly affects their relations with their neighbours and may trouble the peace of the world.

These letters are known to refer to the alleged existence in Hungary of a secret organisation of anarchists, whose efforts are largely directed against the three states which have forwarded their protests to Geneva.

HUNGARY'S RESENTMENT

Hungary is hot with resentment against the charges of her neighbour states. The Hungarian delegate to Geneva, M. Tibor Eckhardt, issued a statement in reply to the Yugo-Slavian charges, accepting that government's challenge to debate the whole situation which brought about the assassinations at Marseilles before the Council of the League.

"I most energetically protest against these manoeuvres which I consider an act of international terrorism," declared M. Eckhardt.—United Press.

HIDING REAL CAUSES

Geneva, Nov. 22. M. Tibor Eckhardt, Hungarian representative on Minorities questions at Geneva, arrived here today.

He welcomed the League decision to clear up the mysteries attached to the assassination of King Alexander, but emphatically protested against the "calumnies" of the Yugo-Slavian note to Geneva, which he described as an effort to distract attention from the real causes of the crime at Marseilles.—Reuter.

America Safe For Democrats

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 23, 7.15 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 22. An official survey discloses that the Fascist movement in the United States is at present negligible and confined to small groups.

Some of these groups include organisations which actually aim at safeguarding the Government against Communism and at the protection of the Constitution. The result of the survey was made known following the charges that a New York Fascist syndicate had attempted to bribe General Smoot to lead a movement to overthrow the Government.—United Press.

BOOK PROFITS FROM DROUGHT

AMERICAN FARMER POCKETS MILLIONS

New York, Nov. 22. Although the drought of last summer ruined thousands of American farmers, it is officially estimated that the higher prices for crops, which were a direct result of the drought, brought an actual increase in the total income of the country's agricultural community.

In other words, the loss of the drought area was more than paid for in the normal areas' profits. The income of American agriculture for 1934 was approximately $200,000,000, an increase of about $20,000,000 over the previous year, though the total is still below the pre-slump normal level.—Reuter.

AMERICA ASKS FOR PAYMENT

NOTES TO DEBTOR NATIONS

Washington, Nov. 22. "Please Remit," or words to that effect, are the requests contained in formal notes despatched today from the State Department to the embassies and legations of twelve debtor nations.

The notices call the attention of the diplomatic representatives to the fact that War Debt instalments are due in Washington on December 15.

Nearly U.S.$2,000,000,000 are due next month, according to the calculations of the State Department.—Reuter.

CHARGE FOLLOW SHOOTING AFFRAY

Peking, Nov. 23. General Chi Hung-chang and General Jin Ying-chi, who were recently wounded in a shooting affair at the National Grand Hotel, Tientsin, have been taken to Peking from Tientsin under a heavy guard and will be tried on charges of high treason before a Court-Martial.—Central News.

BRITISH MINISTER TO CHINA AT SHAMEEN

ROUND OF OFFICIAL FUNCTIONS

TRAVELLING WITH FAMILY

Canton, Nov. 22. His Excellency Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Minister to China, accompanied by Lady Theodosia Cadogan, the Misses Cadogan, Mr. J. N. Behrens, Secretary of Legation, and Mr. G. W. Aldington, Private Secretary, arrived at Shameen to-day at 4 p.m. in H.M.S. Falmouth, under the command of Commander F. J. Walker, R.N.

H.B.M. Consul-General, accompanied by Mr. Li Luk-chao, representing the Provincial Government, Colonel C. W. Leung, representing H.B.M. Consul, called on H.M. Minister in H.M.S. Falmouth a few minutes after her arrival.

At 4.20 p.m. the Minister landed at the British Jetty, where he was received by H.B.M. Consul-General and Staff, the Chairman of the Municipal Council and leading British residents. The Naval Guard of Honour was inspected, and the Minister then proceeded to H.B.M. Consulate-General where a second Guard of Honour of Indian Police was inspected.

In the evening the Minister, Lady Theodosia Cadogan, Miss Cadogan and the staff of the British Consulate-General were entertained by H.B.M. Consul-General and Mrs. Phillips at a private dinner party given at their residence.

On Friday, visits will be exchanged between H.B.M.'s Minister and leading Chinese officials. He will later be entertained at the Victoria Hotel, Shameen, for luncheon by the Canton British Chamber of Commerce. In the evening the Chairman of the Provincial Government of Kwangtung will give a dinner in his honour.

On Saturday Sir Alexander will be entertained at luncheon with other foreign guests by H.B.M. Consul-General. From 5 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. there will be a reception for foreign and Chinese guests at H.B.M. Consulate-General to meet H.B.M. Minister and Lady Theodosia Cadogan. In the evening of the same day the Mayor of Canton will entertain the Minister and party for dinner.—Our Own Correspondent.

DELAYED PAYMENT

INSULL'S VAIN STRUGGLE

COUNSEL REVEALS MARKET WAR

FIGHTING AVALANCHE

Chicago, Nov. 22.

During the closing stages of the trial of Samuel Insull, his son, and fifteen others who served under them in the great Insull securities and trust business, counsel for the defence has emphatically and repeatedly denied that Insull unloaded his stock before the crash of his Utility Securities Company.

To-day, counsel declared that of the "accommodation cheques" totalling U.S.$42,000, produced by the Government, Insull had not received one dollar.

The reason for Insull's final and complete embarrassment and the collapse of his gigantic credit structure, was because the banks were outselling him at every turn.

Everyone realised that although the stock market crash came largely as a result of inflated values, prices actually fell far below their real worth in many cases. It was this situation which overbore Insull and his colleagues, counsel argued. Insull made the same mistake as Mr. John D. Rockefeller and practically every big financial man in Wall Street, in trying to stem the falling market tide before the half of the limit of the fall was reached.—Reuter.

RUSH TO MEET RED ADVANCE

CANTON TROOPS FOR FRONTIER

Canton, Nov. 23.

Heavy Cantonese forces are being rushed to Yungyuen, to the south-east of Shikwan, to the object of meeting a new Red menace from the Kiangsi border, as it is learned that another powerful group of Reds is moving in a south-westerly direction after their abandonment of Huichang, their last stronghold in eastern Kiangsi.

A new defence line is being constructed around Yungyuen.—Central News.

CHINA DEMANDS FOREIGN AID

HOPELESS NARCOTIC WARFARE

TRAFFIC IN CONCESSIONS

BEYOND NANKING CONTROL

Geneva, Nov. 22.

Mr. Victor C. Hoo, China's Ambassador to Switzerland, in a statement made before the League of Nations' Opium Committee to-day, drew the attention of that body to the new series of measures recently enforced by China to combat the narcotic traffic, but urged that foreign powers must assist China in coping with the menace.

The problem in China had become more serious, he said, due perhaps to the more rigorous enforcement of anti-narcotics regulations in the Western world. Furthermore, events in the Far East prevented China from devoting the necessary attention to this responsibility. Mr. Hoo pointed out that the anti-narcotic campaign in China could not be limited to unilateral action. China needed the co-operation of the Powers administering leased territories and concessions where the danger was that foreign traffickers in the dangerous drugs were punished too lightly. China, for her part, had imposed the death penalty in some charges of infraction of the narcotic laws, Mr. Hoo recalled.—Reuter.

HEIRESS GUARDED

VANDERBILT CHILD ENDANGERED

FIGURED IN COURT FIGHT

New York, Nov. 22.

It was revealed to-day that private detectives are guarding little Gloria Vanderbilt, ten-year-old American heiress, day and night. Gloria, who was the principal figure in the recent court fight for her custody between her mother and her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, is on the Whitney estate at Old Westbury, Long Island.

The child is not being guarded against her mother, Mrs. Whitney makes it clear, but because of a threatening letter received by the household recently. Kidnapping was not threatened, but the letter hinted at a plan to do the child physical harm. It was presumably written by a madman.

Little Gloria, who some day will come into an estate of several millions of dollars, has been placed in the custody of her aunt, Mrs. Whitney, for five days a week. Her mother will have the child for week-ends only, according to the ruling of a New York court. But, if it is found necessary to keep the little girl under constant guard, it will probably be impossible for her to visit back and forth between her mother and her aunt, at least for the present.—Reuter.

RETURN TO MOSCOW

Nanking, Nov. 23.

Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, arrived in the capital from Peking last evening to call on Mr. Wang Ching-wei and Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. When interviewed, he said he had decided to resume his duties at Moscow at the expiration of his leave leave. He denied that any diplomatic significance attached to his present visit.—Central News.

The late M. Berthelot.

NOTED DIPLOMAT PASSES

M. BERTHELOT DEAD IN PARIS

Paris, Nov. 22.

M. Philippe Joseph Louis Berthelot, former Secretary-General of the French Foreign Ministry, and one of the most distinguished diplomats of his time, died here to-day. He was the son of the famous chemist, the late Marcellin Berthelot, and was born in 1866, commencing his diplomatic career in 1887.

After serving abroad he became the Director of the Asiatic Section of the Foreign Office in 1904 and in 1914 he was made Director of Political Affairs. He was one of M. Clemenceau's most trusted assistants and took an important part in the Peace Treaty negotiations.

In 1920 he was appointed Secretary-General of the Foreign Office and his policy included rapprochement with Germany, which did not please M. Poincare.

In May, 1922, he was charged before a disciplinary tribunal, presided over by M. Poincare, with misusing his position to favour the Banque Industrielle de Chine, of which his brother was a manager. It was alleged in his reports to the Finance Ministry he had made out the position of the bank to be more satisfactory than he knew it to be in order to induce the Ministry to assist it; and, above all, that he sent official telegrams to the representatives of France abroad asking them to intervene on behalf of his brother's bank.

LONG SUSPENSION

The tribunal suspended him from office for ten years. M. Poincare's opponents always have maintained that M. Berthelot's fate was due to political antagonisms. In February, 1925, under the Amnesty Act, he was restored to the Foreign Office list as "ambassador a disposition," and the dossier of the case against him was officially burned. Two months later his re-appointment by M. Briand as Secretary-General of the Foreign Office was announced.

The Locarno Pact were the first important events to follow his reinstatement. A secret Foreign Office document which an American reporter managed to secure for a press magazine in 1928, was said to have been in M. Berthelot's handwriting. The affair caused a great sensation and caused unfounded press attacks on M. Berthelot.

When M. Herriot became Premier in 1922, he sent M. Berthelot on leave for an indefinite period, but five months later he was recalled to his post. In 1925, however, he retired on the ground of failing health.—Reuter and Special.

New British Picture-Making Colony

SEARCH FOR SITE

The Cosmopolitan Picture Corporation (Ltd.) is looking for a site in the Sheffield district on which a film colony is to be created. It is proposed to erect studios with a large floor space surrounded by a garden village, at which houses would be built for artists, technicians, and other studio workers. A number of sites have been inspected and are under consideration.

A. E. Frenquell, the Continental director of the Corporation, says it is an ideal centre for film production. On the one hand, he said on an interview, you have the biggest steel centre in Great Britain, while immediately on its borders there is scenery which can compare with Switzerland, while the wide stretches of moorland compare with Arizona.

Mr. C. H. Wybrow, managing director of the Corporation, says it is an ideal centre for film production. On the one hand, he said on an interview, you have the biggest steel centre in Great Britain, while immediately on its borders there is scenery which can compare with Switzerland, while the wide stretches of moorland compare with Arizona.

It is understood that one of the most favoured sites is the aerodrome at Norton, Woodsetts. This would be an ideal spot and the aerodrome buildings, which cover a wide area, would be excellent for production purposes.

COLOUR FILMS

Alexander Korda, managing director of London Film Productions, has joined the board of Colourgrainure (Ltd.). This system of filming in colour will be used in a full-length film as soon as the new London Film studios are completed next spring.

It is believed that the Hillman process for the production of moving pictures, patents of which are owned by Colourgrainure (Ltd.), will enable colour pictures to be made at only a slightly higher cost than the present black and white.

BELATED HONEYMOON

Laura la Plante has left London on a belated honeymoon.

Married in June last to Irving Asher, managing director of Warner Bros. First National, Laura la Plante was so busy, both on the screen and stage, that a honeymoon trip at the time of marriage was out of the question. Now they are taking a trip during which they will visit Paris, Monte Carlo, Rome, Venice, and Capri.

On their return, Laura la Plante will prepare for a new film in which she will co-star with Reginald Denny at Teddington.

AMATEUR FILM FESTIVAL

A Scottish festival of amateur films, organised under the auspices of the Meteor Film Producing Society, is to be held in Glasgow on December 8.

The festival will be similar to that held by the Society last year, when Victor Saville adjudicated the entries, but will take a more comprehensive form. Entries will be accepted from societies and clubs in Great Britain, and also individuals resident in Scotland, while there is also to be a class for talking and sound pictures.

The details of the groups are as follows:—
 Class A—Story films open to clubs in Great Britain.
 Class B—Interest films open to clubs in Great Britain.
 Class C—Interest films open to individuals resident in Scotland.
 Class D—Sound films of any description open to clubs or individuals in Great Britain—35 mm. only.

WHEN MAKING GINGERBREAD

GINGERBREAD is liable to sink in the middle when baked in a large tin. Do not make the mixture too moist, and although the oven must not be too hot, a good moderate heat is required. Be careful to measure the treacle or syrup correctly. If too much is used this might also make it heavy. Avoid opening the oven too often before the cake has had time to rise properly.

RADIO "CROONER" SIGNED

Wireless listeners will be interested to learn that Les Allen, one of Britain's most popular dance-band "crooners," has been signed up by Gaumont-British, and will appear in "The Code," a musical subject due to start production at the Gaumont-British Studios at Islington, under Maurice Elvey's direction. Allen will co-star with Cyril Maude, Vera Pearce, Albert Burdon, and Ann Lee.

Les is a Canadian, and hails from Toronto. He came to Britain originally with Hal Swain and his band, and was not at that time a singer, but played the tenor saxophone. His first experience as a "crooner" was a chance occurrence, during the temporary absence of the band's official vocalist. He became later one of Henry Hall's B.B.C. dance band. This is his first venture in films.

GRACIE FIELDS'S NEXT

The author of the story for the next Gracie Fields picture will again be J. B. Priestley, who wrote "Sing As We Go." "I regard this combination of star and author as ideal," states Basil Dean. "Story-writers and stars do not always prove compatible in their ideas, but I feel certain the combination will be a success."

GEORGE BANCROFT'S TANGLED AFFAIRS

George Bancroft, the film actor, has been ordered by the Los Angeles Court to pay 20 dollars a week, and 1,750 dollars (£350) lawyers' fees to Mrs. Edna Bancroft, his first wife, who brought an amended separate maintenance order against him. Those sums, the Court ordered, were to be paid pending his appeal.

MODEL CONVICTS

STUDENTS DELVE IN PRISON MINDS

GAOL-BIRDS KNOW ANSWERS

Jefferson City, Missouri, Nov. 9. Convicts at the Missouri penitentiary may not be smart enough to stay out of prison, but no fresh college students can fool them with a lot of questions and answers.

The prisoners laboriously underwent a two-hour test with University of Missouri sociology students firing the questions and the prisoners answering them, honour bound not to look at each other's papers.

The questions were from the standard army alpha test for intelligence. The students hope to find out why convicts are convicts.

There was much glee in the assembly hall with the first easy questions but when the questions got around to classification of such words as "equivocal" and "lugubrious" the groans that went up were decidedly the latter.

The convicts had a hard time deciding why "it is better to fight than to run."

They were given three choices, namely:

1. Cowards are shot;
2. It is more honourable;
3. If you run, you may get shot in the back.

Three out of every five convicts thought the possibility of getting shot in the back was reason enough for a man to fight.

Everybody got one certain question right, but there was some suspicion that a former confidence man had muttered the right answer a little too loudly. The question read:

"If a grocer should give you too much money in making change, would you

1. Buy some candy from him with it?
2. Give it to the first poor man you met?
3. Tell him his mistake?"

Every convict had number 3 on his paper.—United Press.

HONGKONG'S TRADE GAIN

Canadian trade with Hongkong in the latest year for which figures are available (the twelve months ended August) shows a substantial increase. Both imports and exports are higher. Canadian imports from Hongkong rose from $555,380 (Canadian) to $558,053. Exports to Hongkong of Canadian produce rose from $1,100,105 to $1,241,335.

from the previous order, under which he was required to pay £800 lawyers' fees.

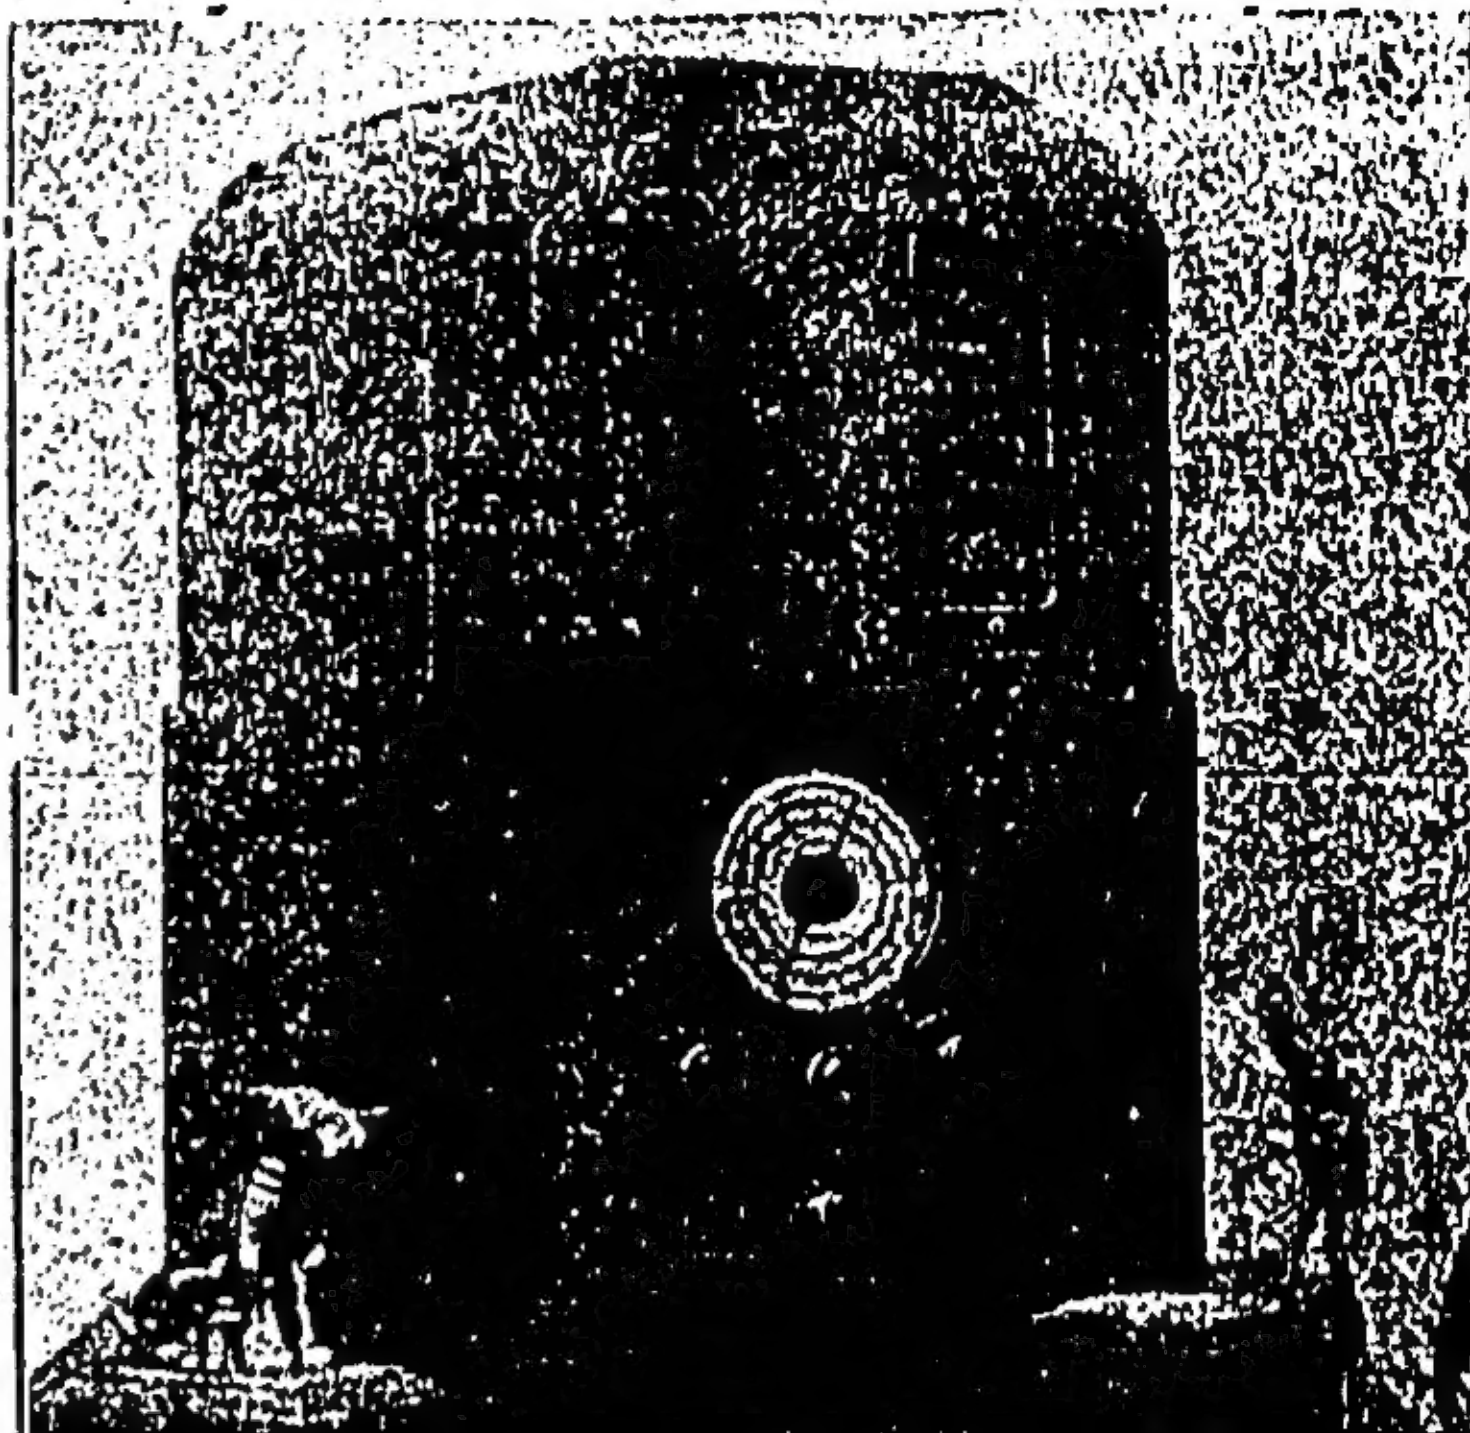

A demand for temporary alimony by Mrs. Edna Bancroft was refused by the Judge on September 7, when the £800 costs against her husband were granted.

At the same time an order was made restraining George Bancroft from making over his property to his present wife, Mrs. Octavia Bancroft.

This rule was given pending the trial of Mrs. Edna Bancroft's maintenance suit, in which Mrs. Octavia Bancroft, the actor's present wife, is cited as co-respondent.

George Bancroft alleges that records show that Mrs. Edna Bancroft was not legally divorced from her first husband when she married him at Buffalo in 1913, and that, therefore, she is not his wife.

IN SHELTER OF DICTATORSHIP

By EYRE CARTER

"GIVE US A KING," the Israelites clamoured about three thousand years ago, and the cry is being taken up by nation after nation to-day as discouragement spreads with the apparent failure of democracy to solve the complicated problems, mainly economic rather than political, which beset modern governments. There is, of course, a superficial difference; except in Serbia and possibly now in Bulgaria, kingship has latterly been shorn of most of its authority, and a new label has been invented for the old medicine; men call for a leader. Signor Mussolini, as the Duce, was the first to give the word the status of an official national title, but he left it to the more academically-minded Germans to reduce it to a system—the Führer-prinzip, or the "leader-principle."

This Nordic concept is worth more than deprive his fellow citizens examination if only because it may of their freedom to choose their be accepted uncritically, as a sort leader. And gloriously was his of magic formula, by citizens of confidence in democracy justified other countries who do not pause by the event.

POPULAR CHOICE.

To-day, of course, Herr Hitler maintains that he, too, bases his ascendancy upon popular choice. But the vital point lies in the means by which the people exercise their choice. Here is one method, task of primary importance is that of creating new human beings, already quoted: "(The leader's) The fundamental laws of code is: I must determine the Nordic being are aristocratic. (Aristos means 'the best' and krates means 'to rule.')

Hence there cannot be more than one leader. Unity can only be preserved by one man, honestly only by the most honest, struggle only by the strongest fighter and victor over others, loyalty only by the most loyal, faith only by the one nearest God and justice only by the most just."

With this concept, and its practical exemplification in the events occurring in Germany on June 30 of this year, we may contrast the picture of Abraham Lincoln just before the presidential election in 1864. His first term of office, heavy with the responsibility of a conflict accepted in the defence of the two great principles of unity and liberty, was closing in an atmosphere of despondency. He knew that the strong and courageous leadership which he had given and could continue to give in politics was as necessary as that which General Grant was giving in the field. But he was prepared to take the risk, which seemed almost a certainty, of that leadership passing to another, rather

GERMANIC CONCEPTION

It may be urged that the concept of leadership already presented is a purely Germanic one, possibly adapted to its native soil, but unsuitable for propagation abroad. The same sort of thing was said a few years ago by Signor Mussolini in his declaration that Fascism was an Italian product "not for export." But the seeds of Fascism have apparently floated pollen-wise into receptive or unguarded fields across the Alps. Is the

"leader-principle" also trying to find lodgment abroad? This question becomes easy to answer if two things are remembered. One is that the despotic tendencies of egotism, aggression and emotionalism present themselves as universal aspects of the human mind. The other is that "a nation gets the government that it deserves"; in other words, the chief executive and legislative institutions of a country will reflect the mode of thought expressed by its citizens in their more intimate groupings. There are, for example, two ways of running a sports club, a literary society, or a chamber of commerce. One is for the members to take an active part, by initiating proposals and discussing them in

CANADA'S TRADE WITH CHINA

IMPORTS HIGHER; EXPORTS LOWER

Canadian imports from China in the twelve months ending August 1934 were $2,612,629 (Canadian) as compared with $1,808,585 in the previous twelve months.

Chinese imports from Canada in the same period were valued at $6,366,768 as compared with $7,872,439.

Canada purchases a wide variety of articles from China. Prominent on the list were nuts, of which Canadians bought nearly a million dollars worth in the year. Peanut oil to the value of over half a million dollars was also on the list. Other important items were tea, undressed furs, eggs, manufactures of silk, wool carpets, manufactures of brass, and fireworks.

An equally wide variety of commodities is transported annually from Canada to China. Wheat and wheat flour are important items; as are rubber tyres, fish (dried, salted and pickled), lumber, paper, silver, zinc, ammonium sulphate and aluminium.

Others on the list are: musical instruments, films, electrical apparatus, alcoholic beverages, cobalt oxide and automobile parts.

meaning—government by the whole of the people acting as a unit.

MISLEADING

The second alternative, to allow progressive measures to be entirely planned and carried through from above, frequently gives the impression of speedy advance, and therefore of efficiency. But a decision is not necessarily sound just because it is quickly taken, and the effect of depriving the rank and file of exercising initiative and judgment was well described by Signor N. O. Corbino, who, speaking to the Italian Senate in January, 1934, referred to the tendency of Italians to turn to the Duce for the solution of all their difficulties, and said: "Let me deplore the spread of such a habit which might even give rise to a generation of individuals aware either by laziness or by fear from assuming the necessary responsibility. The fact that the Chief becomes every day bigger should not authorize the Italians to make themselves every day smaller."

Democracy's alternative to the domination of an individual will, supported though it be by the emotionally produced assent of the masses, has so far been to emphasize the "will of the majority," and that is why democracy has not yet reached full fruition. Mere numbers, relying on the same foundation of the human will, do not suffice to establish the best government, the government of good will. In fact, numbers often spell weakness and uncertainty, for, as Bernard Shaw says in "The Apple Cart," "One man that has a mind and knows it can always beat ten men that haven't and don't. Democracy will gather strength in proportion as it obeys the Apostle Paul's injunction to 'let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.' Unity of purpose cannot be achieved on the basis of the strongest, but on the progressive realization by each member of the community of his true individuality as governed by the universal Principle of all good.

Let us spur your memory. Is it a hat you meant to buy? Why delay it then, now that you remember. Give us a few minutes of your time to free your mind of self accusation of forgetfulness.

We have hats—Henry Heath or Scott's... of various shapes and materials. We can fit you with perfect comfort and precision—terms that are synonymous really, but which only a good hatter can provide as permanent features.

There are hats to go with every suit, at prices based on the new value of the dollar.

Even though the Socialist rebels put up such a terrific fight in Spain that the result was in doubt for several days, they did not have opportunity to bring all of their arms into action. Government troops are shown here investigating a socialist arsenal seized while the revolution was at its height.

Scenes such as that depicted above were a common sight throughout the Chinese City recently when Mayor Wu's Emergency Mobilization Order was put into force. "Fires" and "floods" were fought and rebellious mobs quelled, while ambulances rushed through the streets to the accompaniment of clanging bells and shrieking sirens. Picture shows a "casualty" being removed from the scene of a "disturbance" in Kung Woo Road, Chapel, later being taken to a first aid station for attention.

They had to build these special shelves to hold the documentary evidence at Samuel Insull's trial.

INDIA REPORT

BRITISH PRESS
OPINION

London, Nov. 22.
The report of the Select Committee achieves the distinction of leading articles in practically every morning paper throughout Britain.

Apart from the Right Wing Conservatives and the Daily Herald, which are critical from different standpoints, it is generally agreed that the report is a statesman-like document of great weight and authority.

The Times, giving its preliminary impressions, emphasises the immense authority behind the report; also that in its main principles the Government White Paper scheme has been adopted. It expects that the changes made may render the scheme more palatable to the critics.

The News Chronicle, while declaring that the new constitution is not unqualified self-government, says it is at least a vast stride thereto. It urges the Indians to give it a fair trial.

The Manchester Guardian says the numbers of and authority of those signing the Report will prove to most people that the White Paper policy is right.

The Morning Post, on the contrary, declares that the proposals confirm the worst fears of the Conservatives throughout the country. It condemns "the spirit of defeatism" pervading the report and its suggestion that British allies in India have no right to full partnership in its government.

The Daily Mail also declares that the additional safeguards are worthless. The Reports will alienate Conservative votes wholesale from the Government.

The Daily Herald, declaring that a great opportunity has been missed, says that if the Labourites' proposals had been accepted they would have been received with enthusiasm in India.—Reuter.

SUGGESTIONS

ARE HELPFUL

Throughout the year—but probably more often during the approach of Christmas, gift suggestions are welcomed; and in this connection the service of newspaper advertising is beneficial to seller and buyer alike.

Thus the newspaper fills the part of a directory which enters the home daily.

There is nothing stale about it; it guides in the trend of Fashion and gives a faithful indication of progress in every industry.

Between now and Christmas, many thousands of people will scan the pages of the Telegraph, and many of them will be delighted at the gift suggestions it contains.

They change so fast, there should be a new picture at least once a year, for photographs of the children never grow up.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Seldom more than once in a lifetime a motion picture comes along that fairly lifts an audience out of a bustling city and sets them in sweetly-scented fields of new-mown hay to revel in the wholesome pleasures of a rural setting. Such a picture is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest, "Hide-Out," which opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. Simple in theme as it is, nothing has been seen similar to it in recent months. It's the story of a jovial, playboy racketeer who believes he has everything youth could desire—plenty of money without earning it, pleasure and romance. But it is not until he is driven into the sheltering bosom of a simple farmer's family that he really discovers life and love. Robert Montgomery as "Lucky" Wilson, runs afoul of the law in his New York "Shakedown" racket and is forced by his gang brothers to hide out for a few weeks. He finds himself on a Connecticut farm and amid the farmer's family—Mr. Miller, Mrs. Miller, their lovely daughter, Pauline, and their pestiferous boy, Willie. The picture fairly breathes of the rural setting, with a wealth of wholesome humour injected into the plot through Montgomery's ignorance of rural life and the habits of farm stock—the cows, chickens, ducks, horses and rabbits. When it is time for him to return to New York, he refuses because he has fallen in love with Pauline, the only nice girl he had ever known. Eventually, two detectives catch up with him. The manner in which "Lucky" is taken from the farm environment and the climax of the story add the finishing touches to one of the most amusing pictures to come out of Hollywood. As Pauline, the country girl, Maureen O'Sullivan gives one of her sweetest performances. Mickey Rooney surpasses all his other screen roles as Willie, and the picture serves as the screen debut of Whitford Kane, a leading character actor of the stage for the past thirty years. W. S. Van Dyke, who directed "Hide-Out," further proves his ability as one of the screen's directors for, though "Hide-Out" immediately followed "The Thin Man," in his direction schedule, the two pictures are as different as day is from night.

"Jungle Trap" Carol Lombard, motion picture actress, whose latest Paramount picture, "Jungle Trap," is coming on Sunday to the King's Theatre, is considered an ideal blonde in colouring. Her skin is very fair, although slightly tanned during the summer months. Her eyes are bright blue, arched and brown, light brown, and hair apple flaxen. In "Jungle Trap," she is featured with Charles Laughton, foremost English actor, Charles Bickford and Kent Taylor. The picture, which was directed by Stuart Walker, presents Miss Lombard in a dramatic role. She is an entertainer in a chop Malay cafe and, through circumstances over which she has no control, is thrown into the very centre of a "hell hole" deep in the jungles. Surrounded by slinking natives and equally evil white men, fugitives from life and the law, she learns the real meaning of fear and love. The love comes in a strange manner and chains her to a man who has lost his soul in this legion of the damned.

"Many Happy Returns" is the title of the Paramount film that introduces Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians to motion picture fans. It is now screening at the Queen's Theatre. George Burns, Gracie Allen, George Barbier, Joan Marsh, Ray Milland and Franklin Pangborn are featured players with the principal roles going to Lombardo and Burns and Allen. The picture was directed by Norman McLeod from the screen play by J. P. McEvoy and Claude Binyon and the screen adaptation by Keeno Thompson and Ray Harris. Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow wrote the music and lyrics. The story is a fast and furious comedy with Gracie Allen doing everything from ruining her dad's department store by turning it into a bird sanctuary and tearing up valuable radio contracts, to trapping

CHURCH LEADERS

NEW MODERATOR FOR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

London, Nov. 22. The prospect of two brothers being heads of two great churches is contained in the announcement that Dr. Marshall Lang of Whittingham, East Lothian, younger brother of Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, has been unanimously nominated as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. The election of the new Moderator will take place in Edinburgh next May. —Reuter Special.

a pair of kidnappers in Hollywood. Veloz and Yolanda, the internationally famous dance team, are also featured in prominent spots throughout the film.

"Romance in the Rain" By that elusive trick of fate, sometimes called coincidence, Esther Ralston, beautiful blonde screen actress, recently re-lived some of her own experiences in life while making "Romance in the Rain." Universal's romantic comedy with music, now showing at the King's Theatre. The story, dealing with a modern Cinderella who rises from obscurity to fame and riches by mere chance, parallels Miss Ralston's early struggles. Little would one suspect by looking at the gorgeous Esther Ralston, in "Romance in the Rain," that she could and did ride bucking broncos over embankments, hang by heels from roaring aeroplanes, make sensational high dives and perform other hazardous stunts which the real stars of the hair raising "drammer" days feared to execute. Then producers suddenly realised she was beautiful and they gave her a chance to do small bits, or parts, and then her years of stage experience, coming from a family of actors, showed. Her big chance came later when Paramount, seeking new faces for "Peter Pan," signed her and a long term contract followed. From that day her rise was meteoric.

INDIAN REFORMS

Whilst the more extreme elements both in England and in India are disappointed at the report of the Joint Parliamentary Committee setting forth definite proposals for Indian constitutional reform, a close reading of the summarised version of this ponderous document conveys the impression that a problem of extreme complexity has been quite reasonably handled. It has been a laborious process, spread over a period of six years, to evolve the plan now put forward, and in the course of the protracted investigations representative Indians and Britons have been called into close consultation. The magnitude of the task will be realised when it is pointed out that the reforms involve conversion of the present semi-bureaucratic system of government into a responsibly governed Federation of States and Provinces. They necessitate a complete reconstruction of the existing Constitution. When it is borne in mind that the units which will eventually compose the Federation are not at present in existence as separate entities, some idea can be gained of the immensity of the task. It is further to be remembered that there is no precedent on which to work in carrying out this tremendous change. In its main features, the report of the Committee does not greatly deviate from the White Paper proposals, which were based on autonomy for the Provinces of British India, with certain special powers retained in the hands of the Governor, and a Federation of the States and British India, with central responsibility, subject to certain safeguards. If anything, however, the report proceeds on somewhat more cautious lines. Objection is taken by Labour dissentients to the suggested indirect method of election at the centre, and also to the proposed creation of Second Chambers in the Legislatures. It is also urged from the same quarter that India should be able to attain Dominion status by a process of internal development, without recourse to further Acts of Parliament. Such criticism was to be expected. As against it may be placed the complaints which the "Die-Hards" of the Conservative Party can be expected to advance that the proposals, so far from being too rigid, are dangerously liberal. The Committee, however, has taken the course of a happy mean, in which, it is reasonable to think, wisdom will be found. It can certainly be said that the proposals put forward represent a distinct advance along the road of self-government, and, what is more, they clearly betoken a deep sincerity in dealing with a problem of unexampled difficulty. Even on their present basis, the recommendations imply the carrying

NOTES OF THE DAY

ALARMISTS ANSWERED

In the tumult of accusations which have been heard against Germany in Paris, one voice has been raised to call to order a public which seemed infected with panic. It was that of the capable and clear-headed chief of the Air Ministry, General Dornin, who knows what he is talking about. On several occasions recently the French press has burst into print with tales of enormous German air armaments. In London, certain newspapers warned against the menace from across the Rhine where some "authorities" insist a fleet of war planes 40,000 strong could be mustered within a few months. Such allegations seemed a trifle far-fetched to most observers at home and abroad, but the credulous were worried. They were more concerned still when the Daily Mail announced that half of Britain's air fleet of 500 machines was antiquated. What could an Air Force of such a size and quality do against an invading armada live to ten times as numerous? It now appears, however, that the German "menace" is much exaggerated. General Dornin declares that Germany's air strength will not be more than 1,100 machines at the beginning of 1935. There is no denying the fact that Germany is increasing her air armaments; but who is not? The fact that she is purchasing aeroplane engines in Britain and America should not cause Parliaments, whose air fleet is the biggest in the world, very great anxiety; nor England, either.

COMING TO HONGKONG

Mr. Juan Trippe, head of the Pan-American Airways, has definitely announced that his big Sikorsky flying boats will presently commence their trans-Pacific schedule. They will make test flights in February, 1935. That is only three months away. When they leave California, they will fly via Hawaii, to Manila, and they are supposed to be coming to Hongkong. We have not yet been told what is the local official reaction to this scheme, and it would be interesting to know how far the Pan-American Airways planes will be assisted in their projected service to China. Hongkong may feel some mortification that Imperial Airways has not taken the first step towards linking the Far East with the Occidental capitals, but business men will assuredly welcome any trans-Pacific air link which will bring the Colony within three days' journey of America.

NATURE, THE POET

The poets of some thousands of years hence ought to have a pretty fine time of it, for Sir James Jeans, famous British scientist, predicts that in the future we shall have moonlight all night long, every night in the year and no one who reads poetry needs to be told what this will do for poets. Our moon, says Sir James, is going to draw nearer and nearer to the earth, and eventually it will get so close that it will break up and give us an earth-circling fringe of moon-fragments. This, of course, will rob us of our moon—but these myriads of fragments will reflect the sun's light down to us at night, and every night will be made bright by moonlight. These scientific gentlemen can draw some strange pictures for us, when they begin looking into the future. Surely none is more pleasantly fantastic than this forecast of a time of perpetual moonlight. What an era for poets and for lovers!

U.S. NAVY'S PART

The Navy Department is going to help the American merchant marine ensure the safety of ships and passengers on the high seas. Senior naval officers will be detailed to make voyages on ships over which the Department of Commerce has jurisdiction, according to arrangements recently concluded between the Commerce and Navy Departments. They will inspect thoroughly the personnel and equipment of the ships. From their reports will come new systems of regulation. It is reported that new methods of disciplining and training merchant ships' crews will be one product of this innovation. It looks like an exceedingly sensible move. The watchful eyes of trained naval men can be depended upon to detect any flaws in equipment or construction, and a taste of discipline after the naval manner might not hurt crews that tend to get confused and panicky in time of crisis.

out of a tremendous experiment, charged with far-reaching possibilities. As a first step, they are in no sense rigidly in concept or illiberal in form. They are obviously intended to lead to even bigger concessions. But at the moment it is only right and proper that the guiding principles should rest on a policy of hastening slowly.

MODERN VIEW OF SIAM KINGDOM

By SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS

SOON after the King of Siam again started on his travels, last winter I arrived in Bangkok. A Regency had taken over the government. The capital was quiet and the people were as calm and cheerful as ever, but beneath the surface of things one could detect a feeling of uneasiness and uncertainty.

The leaders of the last revolutionary rising were in prison. Suspects were still being gathered in; the police were searching houses and offices; much subversive propaganda was in circulation by underground channels, and conversation on political topics was extremely guarded.

The kingdom was impoverished and its finances were in a chaotic state. Anti-royalist sentiment manifested itself in many ways, and the influence of Communist agitators was apparent in certain sections of the so-called Republican movement.

I heard strong criticism of the King for having spent money lavishly on his previous tour of Europe and America. His lack of sales resistance in the United States, according to popular opinion in Bangkok, led to his being smothered in motor-cars and every other mechanical product likely to appeal to an enterprising and progressive monarch. He returned with an expensive account of staggering proportions which was received with consternation by a poverty-stricken Ministry of Finance.

And now he had gone off again on another circuit of the world, certainly to undergo a second operation on his eyes, but actually in the opinion of his critical subjects, to increase his hoard of gadgets for which they could ill afford to pay.

I asked a member of the foreign colony who had lived for many years in Siam when the King was expected to return. "The King will not come back," was the surprising reply. "He has seen the handwriting on the wall. The revolutionary movement will rise again, and he realises that if he is here he will be assassinated. You will find him in the near future safely lodged in some foreign country, probably in England, with sufficient funds beyond the reach of his enemies to ensure him a comfortable future."

He added darkly, "I would not be surprised if there were executions in Bangkok before the year is out."

If there are, the revolutionary spirit in Siam has entered a new phase. No revolt in our time has been conducted with such tact and restraint as the first upheaval, when the absolute authority of the Throne was challenged by a band of ambitious young men imbued with idealistic principles of democratic government. When the last coup took place Ministerial departments changed hands almost by appointment and outgoing incumbents were shown to the door at their convenience.

The Siamese are, with the exception of the Japanese, the politest people I have ever met. If they reach the stage of inflicting the death penalty upon their political opponents I am sure it will be done with every expression of regret.

They are intensely nationalistic. Extreme dignity marks their unfailing kindness to foreigners. The police guiding the curious traffic in the streets of Bangkok, the guards of the railway trains, the soldiers and sailors one meets along the busy river front, bear themselves with an independent air which is in no way aggressive. The inferiority complex is utterly lacking.

And they are progressive. The state railway service would do credit to any nation. Bangkok has a fine new central station which I prefer to Victoria. Trains run exactly to time and are clean and comfortable. The express linking the capital with Penang and Singapore is composed of sleeping and dining cars as comfortable as those of the Royal Scot. You can travel from Bangkok to the frontier of Indo-China in carriages comparable to any in Great Britain.

The wooden stations are well kept and the ground around them is trim and tidy. Stationmasters stand at attention with a friendly smile as your train moves away, and the entire countryside through which you pass smiles with them. Frontier guards are as strict as any Balkan police in the matter of visas, but although their meticulous observance of immigration laws is sometimes irritating it is done with perfect courtesy.

It is difficult to think of them as a revolutionary-minded people. They give the impression of being too engrossed in the pleasant business of living their simple lives to bother with affairs of government.

The crowded waterways of Bangkok, where thousands of families live in crazy wooden huts on stilts and go shopping in the early morning in flat-bottomed boats, have no resemblance to the slums of a capital from which revolutionaries are recruited. Their ramshackle, unpainted caravans of Venice is steeped in cheerfulness, if one can judge by the kindly faces that grin responsively at every passing launch.

Ashore in the unpretentious business and residential quarters you find the same carefree spirit, perhaps a little more reserved, but as discernible. The Westernised young Siamese takes his recreation in the European way; he goes in for sport with hearty zest; at night you may find him in a well-conducted cabaret decorously applauding the strange but graceful dances of a native ballet, or watching with appreciative eyes a comic film in one of Bangkok's gaudy cinemas.

The police keep his recreations within proper bounds. There are none of the debased attractions of a port where ships of many nations are anchored.

The foreign colony lives in fine modern mansions reached by shaded boulevards. There are a sports club with tennis and squash courts, a golf course, and a spacious lawn which is the pleasantest place imaginable for the consumption of lead drinks at sunset.

The Diplomatic Corps has its own quiet social life and its members mingle with the many princes and princesses of the Royal House who have adopted Western ways and like them. Britons who first went to Bangkok years ago love the place. I know a Yorkshire man who settled there more than a generation ago and calls it home.

Yes, it is difficult for me to visualise a bloody revolution in such a setting. Perhaps the King finds it more difficult still.

The Very Idea!

INTERVIEWING GEORGE

By Eddie "Castlerosse" Kelly

WHEN a humorist meets a humorist, how do they greet each other? Does their talk tumble over with wit and acerbity, or do they, even as you and I, descend to discussing such subjects as closing hours and the dollar quotation?

In the hope of solving this intriguing problem, the Telegraph arranged for Mr. Edward Kelly, its well known half-wit, to interview George, the other half-wit. The meeting of the two half-wits, and to relate, resulted in two full hours and the dollar quotation?

Now read on.

George: 'Ullio!

Mr. Kelly (politely): Good morning, George. I was wondering if you could lend me ten bucks until the end of the month?

George: Oh, you were, were you?

Mr. Kelly: Yes, I were . . . was . . . am. Why, n, splendid fellow like you. What I mean to say . . . well, anyway, what's it feel like to be a humorist?

George (after long and morbid thought): I don't know.

Mr. Kelly: It must be awful to have to net the goat for a living.

George (cattishly): Yes, You're better off than I am. You don't have to net.

Mr. Kelly (sternly): George! Please remember that you are being interviewed for the Hongkong Telegraph. How did you come to take the name of George, and why haven't you a surname?

George (sulkily): My father gave it to me.

Mr. Kelly: Why?

George: Cause it was his name, I gus.

Mr. Kelly: Oh! Your father's name was George and your mother's name was Georgina?

George: No. My name is George. Mr. Kelly: How did your father and mother know that your name was George?

George (fearfully): Hll! Don't knock my glass over.

Mr. Kelly: All that stuff you write in the "Very Idea" about beer. Do you ever get any real beer sent to you?

George: No, damitall. A man's got to buy his own here.

Mr. Kelly: Well, how is it you're nearly always bloated? I believe you're lying to me, you coughdrop addict.

George: Say, you! You used to run this column every day. How many cases of beer did you receive from your readers?

Mr. Kelly (hurriedly): Don't let's quarrel, George. Listen, when you put a joke over, and nobody laughs, what do you do?

George (loftily): That has never happened to me. When I write something funny, it goes right over. Sometimes it goes so far over that it goes over their heads. In that case, I do my own laughing and charge extra linage.

Mr. Kelly: Haven't you ever felt a yearning to write something inspiring, like "Cavalcade," or something.

George: "Cavalcade"? Never heard of it. Do you use a full pack?

Mr. Kelly: George, I'm afraid you're a lowbrow. Do you know what that is?

George: Yes. It's a thing you hang your clothes up in.

Mr. Kelly (turning away disgustedly): Pah! Call yourself a journalist?

George: Are you going away without buying me a drink?

Mr. Kelly: I have no money.

George (sorrowfully): Well, no one can say you're not a real journalist, after that.

Mr. Kelly: Don't George yourself to drath on those free chips and peanuts.

George: You're simply Kelly-ing me!

Mr. Kelly: Goodbye, George. Don't forget that ten bucks. DEEP SILENCE.

YESTERDAY'S HELENA MAY CONCERT

Special Critique By "Allegro"

Mrs. O. P. Jace is to be congratulated on the thoroughness with which she organized yesterday's concert at the Helena May Institute. For weeks she laboured to make it a success, overlooking nothing from advance publicity to platform decorations, and she might serve as an example to organizers of similar concerts.

The programme was given by three popular artists, and consisted of plenty of first-class material; the composers comprised Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Schumann, Strauss, Medtner, Scriabin, Cyril Scott and eight others. Every item was carefully selected, and each was a gem itself; there was not one to which the most flimsy of highbrows could have objected on the score of being cheap or unsuitable, and it is very rare for a Helena May audience to cast its eyes over a programme promising such a musical feast.

MORE CONTRAST NEEDED

There was only one defect in the make-up of this imposing selection of works, one which it was probably impossible for the organizer to detect until the eighty-minute programme was given in its entirety. Far too many of the items breathed an air of tranquillity, staidness and solemnity; only too few were rollicking, gay and stimulating. On the few occasions when an effective climax was reached, as in the third of Korby's Hungarian Melodies which ended with a dramatic "Strike him dead," the audience obviously warmed immediately and welcomed it as one welcomes a cocktail after a week on the water wagon. To say this does not detract from the merits of the water wagon any more than it belittles the beauty of any of the separate items which collectively gave the programme such a subdued and quiet atmosphere.

MRS. ANDERSON MILLER

Mrs. Anderson Miller made her first solo appearance at these concerts in a German group, two Bach arias, and three modern songs. This artist has a very easy and charming platform manner; her phrasing and diction are excellent and it is a pleasure to listen to a singer with such a well-trained voice.

I wondered why she gave the Brahms song in English in the middle of the German group, as that composer's songs lose much of their character when sung in a different language, and the other German songs were in German as well as in English. The most charming of the group was Die Spinde by Medtner, the rendering of which was simply delightful.

Of the English songs, the most fascinating was Stanley Taylor's "Rain," which many would have liked to hear a second time, but they were all charming and exquisitely sung.

The Bach arias suited her voice best of all, but they would have been more effective earlier on the programme, before the singer had given us the Strauss and Medtner—it was a case of meat followed by soup. The psychological moment for something sprightly or brilliant occurred in this very place, following upon the Beethoven Sonata. I mention this simply to illustrate the point about the need for more contrast in this otherwise unexceptionable programme.

CAPT. O. P. JACE

Captain O. P. Jace gave us three old English songs which were of a type in which he excels. He is at once on good terms with his audience, he feels the meaning of the words he is singing, and lets one hear them all. The whole group was most enjoyable, the might, perhaps, have given a little more rugged character to the three Hungarian folk melodies of Korby's, whose unpoetical translations make them difficult to render in English, and, one feels, rob them of much of the dramatic nature of the originals. The third one, "Shepherd, see thy horse's foaming mane," to which I have alluded, evoked enthusiastic applause. I hope this artist will appear at other concerts; we do not get enough male singers.

LT. COL. C. H. KUHN

The lion's share of the programme fell to Lt. Col. C. H. Kuhn, who not only played a Beethoven Sonata and seven other piano pieces, but also accompanied both singers throughout (except in the Bach arias, and even then he played a flute obbligato, while Mr. Anderson Miller accompanied on the piano). Except for a brief interval this versatile musician was on the platform for an hour and twenty minutes and he seemed as fresh as ever at the close. As usual he accompanied beautifully.

He chose an early Sonata in G Major, which involved a great deal of delicate finger-work and clean playing, for which his type

ROYAL WEDDING GIFTS VIEWED

LONDON CHEERS HAPPY COUPLE

London, Nov. 22.

A large crowd gathered outside Buckingham Palace and cheered Princess Marina and the Duke of Kent when they drove with the King and Queen to St. James' Palace this afternoon, to view their wedding presents. These make a wonderful display and include gifts from many countries.

British people have already contributed over £30,000 as a wedding gift in the form of donations to the rebuilding fund of St. George's Hospital, of which the Duke is President. Money has been received at the hospital from all over Britain, the sums ranging from large cheques down to penny stamps.—British Wireless.

BOY DIES OF BURNS

Through an oil lamp being upset, Tany Kai, the six-year-old son of a villager at Kap Shek Mei, in the Sham-shui-pu district, was fatally injured when his clothes caught fire.

The incident occurred at 5.30 p.m. yesterday. The fire spread to a bed but was put out by the combined efforts of the inmates before much more damage was caused.

The victim was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards from shock and burns.

of execution and technique are eminently suited. He is at his best in music of this nature, though in the Schumann Romanze he showed another side of him, the romantic side, which he has hitherto withheld from us. This, and a charming Idyl by Medtner, were the most beautifully-rendered works in his group of seven miscellaneous pieces—a group which showed marked originality in its selection. Commencing with two short Preludes by William Balnes, a practically unknown Englishman, he passed to Brahms, Schumann, Medtner and Scriabin, and ended with the lovely Enscape of Cyril Scott. Until one heard them in that order, it was hard to realise how easily each of these varied pieces would lead into the next.

The light and shade in Col. Kuhn's playing are within rather a narrow compass: while the gradations of tone in the soft register are delightful, his touch is on the whole perhaps a little too gentle and his fortissimos too much like mezzofortes. With a freer use of the pedal, he could have emphasized many of the crescendos and climaxes of the Beethoven. I felt at times that in achieving clean playing, he lost opportunities of building up tonal effects.

But it is rather hard and scarcely fair to judge his virility and tone effects from yesterday's performance, because he played on a hired piano instead of the Helena May baby grand, and though he may have felt more at ease with his instrument, it is an unfortunate fact that its tone was most disappointing beyond range of the platform. It was muffled and woolly, and though ideal for accompanying, was not equal to solo work in a fair-sized hall. Strive as he would, one felt he could not get the effects he wished in virile passages, such as the last two pages of Pastorale. I hope that next time he will play on the Grottrian-Steinweg.

The whole concert was thoroughly musical and it would be well if this standard were taken as a pattern in other concerts of the series.

NAVAL TALKS PURPOSES

ference which was due to take place under terms of the Washington Treaty in 1935. This was not a naval conference, but the discussions preliminary to it. The Washington Treaty provided that there shall be a meeting between the parties in 1935 whether Washington Treaty was terminated by notice or not.

Talks had been bilateral and were in continuation of conversations which took place last summer with representatives of United States, France and Italy. In event of denunciation of Washington Treaty with representatives of its parties before end of present year naval conference must still take place under terms of that treaty during next year. There was similar provision in London Naval Treaty for conference in 1935 for purpose of negotiating fresh treaty.

JAPAN'S PROPOSALS.

It was common knowledge that the Japanese Government was not content with the treaty ratio 6-5-3 laid down in the Washington Treaty. They had made during the present conversations with America and Britain, several proposals, the general purpose of which was to establish in substitution for the present treaty system one under which each power would be able to build up to what had been called a common upper limit representing the total amount of ships they were entitled to possess.

There was distinction, said Sir John, between the common upper limit as a matter of right and actual size for ships that were built under that limit. It was not possible for him to give details of the Japanese proposals or to make a declaration as to the matter still under discussion.

"I can say this," he continued, "the British Government will regard a breakdown of the system of naval limitation as a great disaster for everybody, not merely for the powers now in consultation, but for the world at large. The financial and political evils which would result from a renewed race in armament are too apparent for me to enlarge upon them now, and the representatives of the British Government will continue these conversations—there is no intention at all of breaking them off—in the most friendly spirit as long as there is any prospect of finding a way round these difficulties."

SECURITY FIRST

"Equality in security, that every great naval state should feel that its security compares favourably with others, is the unquestioned right of all of us; but that does not necessarily mean, of course, that all fleets should in fact be equal in size. That depends upon the nature of the responsibilities and other things in each case, and whole purpose of our discussions now is to reach, if possible, a basis on which an understanding can be reached without endangering the sense of security of anybody. If that point could approximately be reached, then we shall feel the way has been adequately prepared for next year's conference, subject, of course, to the views of signatories of treaties with France and Italy, for example."

There have been many press reports at different times that the two powers have been putting their heads together to arrange confidentially and vis a vis a third power this, that or the other to make an arrangement without consultation with others, whether it be in government conversations or outside them. Such reports are pure fabrication. We have at all times kept in closest and most friendly touch with other parties and we have kept

Minister of France, at Maracilles. The note was handed to the League Council to-night.

The note recalls that only last June the Yugo-Slav Government drew the attention of the Council to the criminal acts of terrorists in Hungary and to the help they were receiving from the Hungarian authorities.

Yugo-Slavia, the note goes on, signed an agreement at Belgrade in 1921, to which Hungary also affixed its seal, settling the frontier questions, but inquiry had demonstrated that the assassinations were organised and carried out with the participation of refugee terrorists in Hungary who continued to enjoy the same complicity as previously, the note said.

EARLIER COMPLAINTS

The assassins and accomplices include terrorists who have been subject to Yugo-Slav complaints already, the note points out. These complaints were sent to Hungary. The terrorists had gathered in Hungary until the eve of the crime.

The results of the inquiry had made absolutely clear the Hungarian responsibility for aid and support given terrorist action on the part of certain Yugo-Slav emigrants, the note adds.

The note declares that Yugo-Slavs desire that complete light should be shed on the circumstances in which this dreadful crime was prepared and executed, and it is absolutely necessary that the responsibilities involved should be denounced before the highest organ of the international community.

The Yugo-Slav Government asks the Secretary-General of the League to place the matter on the agenda for the next session of the Council.

The Czechoslovakian and Rumanian ministers are handing notes to the League approving and supporting the Yugo-Slav note, and pointing out that the same causes might disturb the peace of their frontiers.—Reuter Special.

Was it excitement...?

Is it due to the climate, or is this attack of migraine one of these periodic occurrences common to women? No matter what the cause of the pain is, 'Gardan' will bring a rapid and certain relief.

'Gardan' not only removes the pain but also prevents it. Therefore take 'Gardan' even in cases of apparently slight indisposition.

LOCAL CRICKET NOTES

INDIANS MISCALULATION OF K.C.C. BATTING

LEAGUE POSITION EVENED BY RESULT OF THE GAME

(By R. Abble)

It is quite evident that the I.R.C. skipper does not read my notes, or else does not agree with my theories. Not so long ago, after the Club threw away a League game against the Civil Service by holding on to two hundred runs, I ventured the opinion that there was not a side in the League, barring the Club perhaps, that was worth a hundred and seventy runs in the second innings on a Saturday afternoon, even if they had two hours to get them in. Over at the K.C.C. I am informed that the I.R.C. batted for two hours and left the K.C.C. an hour and thirty-five minutes to get a hundred and eighty—or alternatively to stop at the wickets.

I am not sure how many runs came in the last quarter of an hour of their innings, but, allowing twenty-nine, a declaration at a hundred and fifty would have been pretty safe. I rather suspect that the Indians were a bit shaken by their early reverses with the bat and failed to gauge the situation accurately. But, as has been frequently said, why all this care about one point? I know it is usually said—in an extremely disparaging tone—of the side that struggles to hold its end up at the end of the day. But to my mind it applies with much more force to the side that hangs on to the wicket in the first innings until they have so many runs that they are safe from defeat, but can only win if the other side are obliging enough to throw their wickets away in an attempt to perform the impossible.

A MISCALULATION

By the way this is not a dig at the Indians over this game as I am quite sure they never committed when people last them out. But I do think that they miscalculated the strength of the K.C.C. batting this year. Ernie Fincher is dead off with the bat and Lay has not got his eye in yet. Hung and Mackay are also off colour compared with what they can do. Stapleton and Ramsay also have not been consistent, getting out so often when they seem just played in. However, the result of the game has evened the position in the League question.

THE PLAY

Kowloon were unfortunate not to be able to command the services of Burnett, while Zimmern was also an absentee. Robert Lee and Mackenzie came into the side, though curiously enough the latter—their only left-hand bowler—was never given even one over. I presume the idea was that he would not be a wise choice against hard hitters, but if he bowled his leg breaks—and he does make the ball turn a lot—steadily at the middle stump I am not so sure he would not do as well as the rest. Of course the fact that Minu is caddy-handed was an argument against this. The Indians started appallingly. Burnham tried to sneak a short one to a left-handed cover-point and paid for his indiscretion, as Mackenzie made an excellent return. Suffad tried to hook Ernie

Fincher and put up a simple catch while S. A. Ismail had a go at the bat before he was seeing the ball properly. Smith came on to bowl better than any one on his side and he made enough pace off the wicket to deceive Perera and Nazarin, who both had almighty swipes with a cross bat and were bowled. A. H. Madar batted nicely and made some pretty shots through the covers, but after he had made twenty-nine, he was caught off a long hop from Willie Hung, (62—6—29). It was just eight runs later that Kowloon, in all probability, lost the match, for Minu was dropped off Smith. Had the catch been taken seven wickets would have been down for sixty instead of, as actually happened, for a hundred and thirty-six. Minu made some very fine hits and one six landed in the Club garden. (If it damaged that mustard and cross Robbie is going to give me some day—I shall have a few words to say to Mr. Minu!) He was dropped again when forty, but it was the very devil of a catch.

K.C.C. STRUGGLE

Starting with the idea of going for the runs. But Teddy Fincher was caught off his glove from the only ball of Perera's that kicked; Ismail was brilliantly caught and bowled by Minu when he made a rod-not drive off a full-toss; and Stapleton and Mackay were both victims of smart work by Ismail behind the stumps. As Lay, after a few good shots, had hit right across one, K.C.C. with six down for forty experienced a rapid change of heart. Ernie Fincher stopped a bit and so did Bob Lee, and here the delayed declaration operated, as finally amid crepuscular gloom, the news filtered through to the Pavilion that in the middle of the ground Minu and Smith had played out time.

SMALL POINTS

Ernie Fincher opened the K.C.C. bowling. Some years ago he was an indifferent medium to medium-fast bowler, and later took up as well as the rest. Of course the fact that Minu is caddy-handed was an argument against this. The Indians started appallingly. Burnham tried to sneak a short one to a left-handed cover-point and paid for his indiscretion, as Mackenzie made an excellent return. Suffad tried to hook Ernie

West Indies Tour

PERSONNEL OF ENGLISH SIDE

D. C. H. Townsend (Oxford University) and Hollies (Warwickshire) have accepted invitations to accompany the M.C.C. team which is to tour the West Indies during the coming winter.

It is probable that one more player will be included, making 14 in all.

George Geary, the England and Leicestershire cricketer, has turned down a tempting offer by Burnley, the Lancashire League club.

He will take charge of Leicestershire's winter cricket school, which was inaugurated a year ago and will be in the Leicestershire side next season.

J. A. J. Christy, the South African cricketer, who has been engaged by Queensland as coach, is to be allowed to play in Australia's Sheffield Shield matches.

TOO AIR-MINDED IN SOCCER

Slashing Comment By James Hogan

Speaking at a meeting of the Fulham Rotary Club recently, Mr. James Hogan, the Fulham F.C. manager, declared that modern Association football had deteriorated, that we were training as we did in Queen Victoria's days, and that intelligence was a dire necessity in the game.

"It is not football," he went on, "it is air-ball—a case of swinging the ball about down the middle and catch it if you can."

Players sent to train on our running tracks and golf links were trying to entertain the public as first-class exponents when sometimes they were unable to chuck a ball or control the ball properly. We had been beaten by footballers on the Continent who were trained by scientific methods.

"There are people who criticise my ideas," added Mr. Hogan. "Look at Fulham's goal average. We shall not be far out at the end of the season."

Mr. Hogan is an old Soccer player who has assisted Fulham, Burnley, Bolton Wanderers and Swindon, and who spent a number of years on the Continent as a football coach.

well as usual and he is a greatly improved player. I regret that this was A. H. Madar's last game in the Colony for some time as he is sailing for Bombay to-morrow. I wish him good luck, and good cricket, and if what I hear rumoured is true may they "live happily ever afterwards!" I am told the new members of the I.R.C. are fitting very well into the side, and Minu's five or seven over shows that he is as dangerous as ever.

SECOND DIVISION

The K.C.C. second string was not successful in getting Walsh out early. He must have a very fine average in the Junior Division! Ballard, another Army player was too good for them with the ball, and they were heavily beaten. The K.C.C. Juniors drew with I.R.C. though the latter cannot be accused of making too many runs! But I am told they were never likely to lose.

FRIENDLIES

In friendly games Elvin trundled Craigsgower out—5 for 15, Leonard alone making runs. Colledge came off at last, but the bowling was rather weak. Armstrong and Baines were chiefly responsible for the Club success putting it across the Police. The Schools are very active this season I am glad to find but it is difficult to obtain particulars.

TO-MORROW'S GAMES

The Navy are at home to the I.R.C. in the Senior League but will find it hard to save defeat. Much depends on Bramwell, if he is available. Recreio take on Kowloon and a very good game should result. Craigsgower and C.S.C.C. have a friendly. Army are resting, and I know nothing of the University, who I imagine are tied up with Examinations. Being a member I have great hopes of getting a H.K.C.C. card before Christmas.

JUNIORS

I.R.C. play Navy II in the only League match of which I know. They should win. C.S.C.C. and C.C.C. have a friendly and D.B.S. visit the Police. I have no information about the other teams.

IN MEMORIAM

ROGER CORBETT: H.K. JOCKEY

(By "Capt. Foster")

It is with the profoundest regret that I learned of the untimely death of Roger Corbett announced in the Telegraph yesterday and I am sure there are many who share that regret with me.

I knew him well, and many were the enjoyable rides we had together in the Panling country. He was of a rather retiring disposition, but was always most jovial and companionable with his friends, who were many. It was ambition of his to ride in the Grand National at Aintree, and I do believe he would have been given a mount in March as show owners and trainers had begun to realise that he was a capable and dashing rider over the fences.

He was a heavy man, normally weighing at 14 stone. To ride 10 stone 11 lbs. as he did on one occasion he had to train very hard, which explains why he was so seldom seen riding at Happy Valley.

He quickly made his mark in Hongkong as a jockey, under N. H. Rules, and in the short time he was here he rode fourteen winners at Panling. In February 1932 he performed the "hat trick" by winning the Belmont Park Handicap on The Quail, the Meadowbrook Cup on Big Ching and the Latoma Handicap on Tanager.

His winners at Panling were:

1932/1933 SEASON

8/2/31. — Fernleaf, Hunters' Hurdle Race.
22/3/31. — Christmas Frolic, Panling Grand National; and Fernleaf, Governor's Cup.

1931/1932 SEASON

15/11/31. — Royal Flush, Sheung Shui Hurdle Race; and Christmas Belle, Tai Po Steeplechase.
20/12/31. — Wattle, Canberra Handicap Steeplechase; Christmas

Belle, Christmas Steeplechase; and Royal Flush, Sha Tau Kok Steeplechase.

24/1/32. — St. Moritz, Randwick Plate; and Tom, Gattwick Handicap.

14/2/32. — The Quail, Belmont Park Handicap; Big Ching, Meadowbrook Cup and (The hat trick). Tanager, Latoma Handicap.

20/3/32. — Daylight Eve, Long-champs Plate.

On the Flat at Happy Valley, he had very few mounts, and registered three wins all told, viz.: 1931—Armony, Carnarvonshire Stakes; and Tiana, Canter Handicap. (Win Pari paid $239.70).

Jack McLaren, the Scottish Champion, defeated A. L. R. a former Australian amateur champion by 11 and 9.—Reuter.

THE THREE ST. LEGER

LEAGUE BADMINTON

LADIES' DOUBLES RESULTS

The Club de Recreio "A" experienced little difficulty in registering their first win in the Ladies' Doubles Badminton League at St. Andrew's Church Hall when the tournament opened last evening. They defeated the home team comfortably by seven sets to two. Miss M. Woolley and Miss M. Churn took games from Mrs. Souza and Miss A. Remedios and from Miss O. Ribeiro and Miss M. Basto.

The K.C.C., on the other hand, had a keen tussle against the Recreio "B", winning by the narrow margin of five games to four. Misses P. and I. Woolley were the weakest link in the Kowloon side losing their three games by 4-21, 6-21 and 6-21.

SAINTS AND RECREIO "A"
The scores in the first mentioned match were as follows:
Miss M. Woolley and Miss M. Churn (St. Andrew's) beat Mrs. Souza and Miss A. Remedios, 21-14; beat Miss O. Ribeiro and Miss M. Basto, 23-22; lost to Misses M. and B. Silva, 8-21.

Miss P. Gittins and Miss J. Wong (St. Andrew's) lost to Mrs. Souza and Miss Remedios, 6-21; lost to Miss Ribeiro and Miss Basto, 4-21; lost to Misses Silva, 6-21.

Miss G. A. White and Miss E. Landolt (St. Andrew's) lost to Mrs. Souza and Miss Remedios, 11-21; lost to Miss Ribeiro and Miss Basto, 11-21; lost to Misses Silva, 7-21.

K.C.C.—RECREIO "B"

The results of the K.C.C.—Recreio match were:
Mrs. A. Noronha and Miss A. Noronha (Recreio) lost to Miss M. Griffith and Mrs. Pollitt, 6-21; beat Miss A. Mackenzie and Miss M. Bryson, 21-14; beat Miss P. Woolley and Miss I. Woolley, 21-4.

Miss A. Ribeiro and Miss S. Remedios (Recreio) lost to Miss Griffith and Mrs. Pollitt, 2-21; lost to Miss Mackenzie and Miss Bryson, 7-21; beat Misses Woolley, 21-6.

Miss M. Zaviera and Miss G. D'Almada (Recreio) lost to Miss Griffith and Mrs. Bryson, 4-21; lost to Miss Mackenzie and Miss Bryson, 16-21; beat Misses Woolley, 21-0.

BLOW TO THE BOOKIES

FAVOURITES AUTUMN DOUBLE WIN

It is doubtful if in recent years the bookmakers have ever been so badly hit over the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire autumn handicaps at Newmarket as they have been this year.

First there was Enfield, winner at 7 to 1 in the Cesarewitch, and then Wychwood Abbot has won the Cambridgeshire at 9 to 1—a favourite and second favourite.

Not only have the bookmakers lost on each race individually but there is also the serious part of the double bet. One of the big bookmakers in Tattersall's ring here at the latter race stated that on doubles alone his firm will have to pay out close on £50,000.

Bookmakers galore packed up after the big race. It might have been because of the rain. It might have been because of the other depression.

As for the punters, they are particularly happy. Many have cleared handsome sums over the winning double.

BODY-LINE RULING

APPROVAL FROM AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Nov. 22. The M. C. C. Bodyline ruling is generally approved in Australia, where it is considered that the previous Australian rule has been adopted in principle.

Mr. Johnson, one of the Test selectors, said that the M.C.C. had followed Australia and would have been more candid if it had adopted the Australian rule exactly. The M.C.C. appeared a little ashamed to come into the open.

Mr. Kelle, manager of the 1934 touring Australian team said it was pleasing to see that the M.C.C. had arrived at a decision which sounded the death knell of the type of bowling exploited by Jardine in 1932—a direct attack on the batsman for the purpose of intimidation.—Reuter.

SOLDIER OF BRITAIN'S STAGGERING TIME

RUNS BEST RACE OF CAREER AT SATURDAY'S VALLEY MEETING

(By "Captain Foster")

The three St. Leger races produced three easy victories. Soldier of Britain (Mr. Deitz) won the Hongkong St. Leger, Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) the Sub-Griffins St. Leger and Able Amazon (Mr. Butler) the Freemantle St. Leger. The wins were so convincing that I expect to see these same ponies score just as easily in their respective Champion races next month.

The time of 3-36 2/5 registered by Soldier of Britain (Mr. Deitz) in the Hongkong St. Leger simply staggered me, the more so as I did not consider the pony a stayer. Liberty Bay is the only pony that has covered a mile and three-quarters in faster time. He created the record of 3-32 4/5 on February 20, 1933 when cantering away with the Challenge Cup, and registering the following quarters:—

30 3/5—1-00 4/5—1-31 1/5—2-00 3/5—2-31 2/5—3-02—3-32 4/5.

As a St. Leger gallop, however, Soldier of Britain's performance shows up well. As a matter of interest I give the three best gallops to date in the St. Leger. 1934. Soldier of Britain 31-1-00 3/5—1-31—2-02 2/5—2-33 3/5—3-05 1/5—3-36 2/5. 1932. Liberty Bay 34 2/5—1-07 3/5—1-39 1/5—2-08 3/5—2-37 3/5—3-04 3/5.

1933. Trentbridge 31 1/5—1-01 4/5—1-33 2/5—2-04 1/5—2-35 4/5—3-06 4/5—3-38 1/5—3-37 4/5.

There was no away at the start for the St. Leger and, when the flag fell, Soldier of Britain (well ridden by Mr. Deitz who, in fact, was seen at his best) at once set a fast gallop. The last pace—at an average of 31 seconds a quarter—was maintained throughout the race and Soldier of Britain won easily by four lengths. At the early stages, Gladiator (Mr. Fung) about half a dozen lengths behind—took second position, being closely followed by the rest of the field with Brilliant Star (Mr. Pan) bringing up the rear.

The favourite, King's Warden (Mr. Heard), was lying fourth. Soldier of Britain, Gladiator and Macaroni (Mr. Prouk) when passing the Grand Stand first time round, but he was not moving too well. Macaroni swerved badly to the outside at the five furlong post and was out of the race thereafter. At this point, Soldier of China (Mr. Pih) and Electric Star (Mr. Butler) commenced to close up and ranged alongside Gladiator on approaching the half mile post. King's Warden was a spent force at the Rock, and Electric Star, at the same time, was seen to falter. Soldier of Britain continued his fast gallop and led into the straight by about half a dozen lengths from Gladiator and Soldier of China. The last two named ponies were fighting it out for second position, and eventually dead-heated for third place. Though late on the scene, Ribble (Mr. P. P. Botelho) came up the straight with a terrific burst of speed to pass Gladiator and Soldier of China to take second place.

A PONY OF CLASS

Commenting on the ponies in the race, I would say that Soldier of Britain ran the best race of his career, and has shown himself to be a pony of class. He would now appear to have the Autumn Champions at his mercy as Liberty Bay, Diana Bay or Trentbridge are

SUB-GRIFFINS ST. LEGER

The Sub-griffins St. Leger was won easily by Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) with Classic Hall (Mr. Heard) second, and Soldier of Fortune (Mr. Deitz) third. It was an uninteresting race to watch, and the early part of the journey was done at a slow pace, in fact the race was actually nothing more than a three furlong sprint. Little Beau (Mr. Davis) led from the start, followed by Copper Idiot (Mr. P. P. Botelho) and St. Ives (Mr. Prouk). Tiny Star (Mr. Butler) kind of (Mr. Pan) Soldier of Fortune (Mr. Deitz) and Classic Hall (Mr. Heard) were immediately behind, with Sorabundo (Mr. Ip) and Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) last. This order was practically maintained until the Black Rock, second time round, when Cavalcade went up very fast to easily assume command on entering into the straight, and to eventually win by four lengths. Classic Hall shot out of the rock, closely followed by Soldier of Fortune, at the bend for home, but neither of them could make any impression on the winner, who won with plenty in hand.

FREEMANTLE ST. LEGER

Able Amazon (Mr. Butler) had no difficulty in winning the Freemantle St. Leger, and in which Bag Tor (Mr. Davis) finished second and Racing Heart (Mr. Heard) third. Racing Heart took the lead from the start, and was challenged by Able Amazon about half a mile from home. They galloped together for about half a furlong when Able Amazon took the lead, and went on to win without an effort. Bag Tor passed Racing Heart soon after entering the straight. High Finance (Mr. P. P. Botelho) finished fourth.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

When DAN BLECKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he determines to employ SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminalist, to solve the murder.

Morden had been assigned to learn all he could about FRANK D. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported, Cathay had been arrested. Later it was proven that the man arrested, giving the name of Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY HIRSH, was an impostor. The Blade published a retraction.

Then Morden is found dead and a few hours later comes news that Cathay is dead—possibly poisoned.

Sidney Griff undertakes the case. He calls on Cathay's doctor and his lawyer, CHARLES BLECKER, later Griff goes to see MRS. CATHAY. When he tells her of Morden's death she faints. Griff looks, saying to the last driver, "Get me to a public telephone."

CHAPTER XV

The cab driver drove at high speed down the winding road which led from the big Cathay home to the nearest through boulevard. He pulled in before a drug store and held the door of the car open.

Sidney Griff entered the drug store, put through a long distance call to Dan Blecker of The Blade.

"The woman in the case," he said, "has employed Carl Racine of the Racine Detective Bureau. She ordered up her car for him, to take him to the city. She is obviously very much frightened. It would probably be advisable for you to have two of your best men waiting along the boulevard. I believe that you are familiar with her car and can give the men a description of it. Doubtless some of your reporters know Racine personally. When he passes have them drop in behind and see if they can follow him. I think he has been sent upon a mission of the greatest importance—a mission which requires some skill and daring to handle. Racine was hostile when I met him."

Blecker's reply was directly to the point.

"When did they leave?" he asked.

"Approximately 15 minutes ago."

"The road will be covered," Blecker said. "We have just received assurance from the authorities at Riverview that an autopsy will be ordered."

Griff gave a low whistle.

"You must," he said, "have exerted considerable pressure."

"We did," said Blecker, "but we received unexpected reinforcements from a confidential communication made to the authorities by one of the physicians in the case. It represented a complete change of attitude on his part since an earlier interview. I was wondering if, perhaps, your presence in Riverview had been responsible for the physician's change of attitude."

Sidney Griff laughed.

"My presence in Riverview," he said, "has been responsible for a lot of things. I'm playing human checkers. I'll see you this evening."

Smiling, he said the receiver gently back on the hook. His face was alert, his eyes narrowed, wary and watchful.

There were two parchment-shaded lamps burning in the room but the glow they gave was subdued. Sidney Griff, attired in lounging suit and long woollen bath-robe, stared into the spiraling smoke from his cigarette. Across from him, Dan Blecker seemed very much excited.

"Anything about Decker?" he asked. "Any news for us?"

Griff's face froze into rigid impassivity.

"No," he said.

Blecker spoke rapidly. "Remember," he said, "you're going to give us the breaks when the time comes. You know, Griff, there's something uncanny about you, at that."

Griff stared through the cigarette smoke and said, "I presume you're about to tell me that you've found the woman in the case."

"We know who she is," Blecker said. "We haven't found her. That hunch of yours was one of the most remarkable things I've ever encountered."

"Go ahead," Griff said, "tell me about it."

"We got the lead not over half an hour after I was talking with you on the long distance telephone from Riverview," Blecker said. "Bill Osborne, one of our reporters, made a check on a disappearance case which had been reported by a Miss Alice Lorton, 24, residing at the Elite Apartments, 219 Robinson street. She had reported the disappearance of Esther Ordway, 22, who shared her apartment."

The intense nervousness which had characterized the criminalist the night before seemed to have left him now. He stretched out, physically relaxed, the only sign of nervousness being the quick, vigorous puffs on the cigarette which indicated an inner tension.

"That," he said, "is what I like about dealing with you newspaper chaps. You get all of the essential information and pass it on in a concise manner. Tell me some more about Alice Lorton."

"You mean about Esther Ordway, the one who disappeared?" asked Blecker.

Sidney Griff shook his head.

"No," he said, "about Alice Lorton, the one who reported her disappearance."

Blecker looked mildly surprised.

"I didn't talk with her personally," he said. "The reporters gathered the information. She is, I understand, blonde, blue-eyed and pretty—not outstandingly beautiful, you understand, but pretty."

"Go ahead," Griff said. "I want to know everything I can about her. I want to get a complete picture."

"Let me tell you first about the apartment and about Esther Ordway," Blecker said.

Griff once more extended his right arm, with the fingers outstretched, seemed to be groping his way through a maze of intricate thoughts.

"All right, go on," he said almost dreamily.

"Alice Lorton said this Ordway woman had mysteriously disappeared without leaving any word. She'd taken a suitcase and some clothes. After a couple of days passed and Alice Lorton didn't hear anything from her missing friend, she notified the police and the Bureau of Missing Persons."

"We'd never have bothered with it, only for what you said, and the fact that she must have disappeared at about the same time Morden was murdered. We sent a fingerprint expert up to the apartment. He used a pass key. No one knew he went in there. He developed latent prints in places where a male visitor might have left fingerprints on ash trays, on the brass bedstead, on door knobs and places like that. We had Morden's fingerprints on file at the paper, you know. "And, by God, we found some of Morden's fingerprints. There can't be any mistake. He was in that apartment."

"Have you told the police?"

"No, we're keeping it under cover until you tell us to release it. We figure we may be able to do better playing it under cover."

"What's this Ordway woman like?"

Griff asked, dropping his hand to the arm of the chair, his eyes closed, his manner that of one who is completely relaxed.

"From the description we get, she's 22, medium sized, brunette with black eyes. She used lots of makeup, and there was more or less mystery about her. Alice Lorton says she doesn't know very much about the girl; that they shared the apartment, and the girl always paid her share of the rent promptly; that she was supposed to be out of work and looking for a job, but she always seemed to have plenty of money."

"Not a very good description," Griff said. "How about photographs?"

"That's the funny thing," Blecker said. "We can't seem to get hold of a photograph. There's just a chance that the girl played foxxy and took all of her photographs with her. Alice Lorton says she was certain there was a snapshot or two in a photograph album the girl had, and a framed picture that was on the dresser, but the girl seems to have taken those things with her."

"Pretty smart," Griff said.

"I'll say it was plenty smart," Blecker agreed.

"Knowing anything else?" asked Griff.

"Yes, we covered Carl Racine. It was a cinch to follow him. Apparently he didn't suspect anything and the boys didn't have any difficulty

COUNCIL MEETING

SECRETARY OF STATE TO CONSIDER BILL

The final reading of two Bills was the only business before the Legislative Council at their sitting yesterday, which lasted less than a quarter of an hour.

His Excellency, the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., presided and others present were:

His Excellency, the General Officer Commanding the Troops, Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O.

The Colonial Secretary (Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman C.M.G.).

The Attorney General (Hon. Mr. R. E. Lindell).

The Secretary for Chinese Affairs (Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith).

The Colonial Treasurer (Hon. Mr. E. Taylor).

The Harbour Master (Hon. Commander G. F. Holo, R.N., retired).

The Director of Medical and Sanitary Services (Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington, C.M.G.).

The Director of Public Works (Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson).

The Inspector General of Police (Hon. Mr. T. H. King).

Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie.

Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotowall, C.M.G., L.L.D.

Hon. Mr. S. W. T. O. R.E., L.L.D.

Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau.

Hon. Mr. S. H. Dodwell.

Hon. Mr. J. Owen Hughes.

Mr. R. A. C. North (Clerk of Council).

Sund Conservancy.

The Colonial Secretary moved the adoption of the Finance Committee's Report dated November 8, the Hon. Mr. Taylor seconding.

The Attorney General moved the second readings of "A Bill to make provision for the cremation of the dead," and "A Bill to protect the sand supplies of the Colony and to regulate the sale of sand."

The Colonial Secretary seconded, and after the Council had considered them clause by clause in committee, the Bills were passed through their final reading and became law.

A third Bill down for a second reading was "A Bill to facilitate the reciprocal enforcement of judgments in other parts of His Majesty's dominions, and in certain foreign countries."

The Attorney General said: With the permission of Your Excellency and the Council we are

DUPLICATION

THE EMPIRE AIR SERVICES

London, Nov. 22.

Imperial Airways today announced duplication on the Empire air services from London eastward to Calcutta and southward to Johannesburg, given a bi-weekly service of mails and passengers in both directions.

The first plane of the duplicated service will depart from Croydon for Johannesburg on December 30. Thereafter, planes will leave London for South Africa each Sunday and Wednesday.

The duplicated service on the Calcutta route will begin on January 1. Subsequent to that date, planes will leave Croydon for India every Tuesday and Saturday.

January 5 has been set down as the date on which the first planes taking up the duplicated service will leave Calcutta and Johannesburg for London.

The new service provides for four services each way every week between Britain and Egypt.—Reuter Special.

DUTCH AIR HEROES

PARMENTIER AND MOLL WELCOMED HOME

Amsterdam, Nov. 22.

A national welcome was accorded the fliers Parmentier and Moll on their landing from Australia.

A military band played and representatives of the Cabinet and municipalities were among the forty thousand people present. All participated in a procession through the city.

Parmentier and Moll, flying a Douglas machine, were second in both the speed and handicap races to Australia.—Reuter.

postponing proceeding in connection with this Bill as I understand the Secretary of State desires that a draft be sent to him before the Bill passes into law.

The Council then adjourned.

Finance Committee.

The Colonial Secretary, the Hon. Sir Thomas Southorn, presided at the Finance Committee meeting which followed.

Votes totalling $2,200 were approved.

SIR M. LAMPSON

FORMER MINISTER TO CHINA TO MARRY AGAIN

London, Nov. 22.

The engagement is announced of Sir Miles Lampson, High Commissioner for Egypt, and Jacqueline, only daughter of Sir Aldo and Lady Castellani.—Reuter.

Sir Miles passed through Hongkong when, at the end of last year, he was transferred from the post of Minister to China, which he had occupied for seven years, to represent the Government in Egypt.

He began his diplomatic career in the Far East as Secretary to the Carter Mission to Japan in 1906 and his close touch with affairs on this side of the world brought him many friends and much admiration for his work.

In 1930 Sir Miles suffered the bereavement of his wife, Lady Lampson dying at the French Hospital whilst down here on a visit to Canton. Her grave is at Happy Valley.

Sir Aldo Castellani is chiefly known for his researches into sleeping sickness and yaws. He is an authority on tropical diseases, and is Director-in-Chief of the Ross Institute. He has won many distinctions. Lady Castellani is the daughter of Mr. George Amber Stend.

HUNGARY BLAMED FOR MARSEILLES MURDER

THREE STATES MAKE CHARGE

ECHO OF ASSASSINATION OF KING ALEXANDER

STRONG RESENTMENT IN BUDAPEST

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Nov. 23, 7.55 a.m.)

Geneva, Nov. 22.

Charges that Hungary bears a large share of the responsibility for the murder of King Alexander of Yugo-Slavia have been made before the League of Nations, and there is resentment in Budapest against the allegation. The voices of three states are raised against Hungary, however, and the League will endeavour to clear the air by hearing the whole matter discussed by representatives of the states principally concerned.

There is, admittedly, some considerable tension in the Balkans. The Government of Yugo-Slavia has written a letter to the League of Nations declaring that the Marseilles assassinations have revealed "grave and striking responsibilities on the part of the Hungarian authorities."

"It is thanks to this complicity on the part of Hungarians that the odious act at Marseilles was able to be perpetrated," says the Yugo-Slavian Government, referring to the murder of King Alexander and M. Barthou, the French Foreign Minister.

JOIN IN PROTEST

Czechoslovakia and Rumania have both sent letters to the League of Nations supporting Yugo-Slavia, saying that the situation revealed at Marseilles directly affects their relations with their neighbours and may trouble the peace of the world.

These letters are known to refer to the alleged existence in Hungary of a secret organisation of anarchists, whose efforts are largely directed against the three states which have forwarded their protests to Geneva.

HUNGARY'S RESENTMENT

Hungary is hot with resentment against the charges of her neighbour states. The Hungarian delegate to Geneva, M. Tibor Eckhardt, issued a statement in reply to the Yugo-Slavian charges, accepting the Government's challenge to debate the whole situation which brought about the assassinations at Marseilles before the Council of the League.

"I most energetically protest against these manoeuvres which I consider an act of international terrorism," declared M. Eckhardt.—United Press.

HIDING REAL CAUSES

Geneva, Nov. 22. M. Tibor Eckhardt, Hungarian representative on Minorities questions at Geneva, arrived here to-day. He welcomed the League decision to clear up the mysteries attached to the assassination of King Alexander, but emphatically protested against the "calumnies" of the Yugo-Slavian note to Geneva, which he described as an effort to distract attention from the real causes of the crime at Marseilles.—Reuter.

Washington, Nov. 22. An official survey discloses that the Fascist movement in the United States is at present negligible and confined to small groups.

Some of these groups include organisations which actually aim at safeguarding the Government against Communism and at the protection of the Constitution. The result of the survey was made known following the charges that a New York Fascist syndicate had attempted to bribe General Smedley Butler to lead a movement to overthrow the Government.—United Press.

Manchukuo Taking Up Foreign Oil

APPROPRIATIONS FOR PURCHASE

BIG STOCKS INVOLVED

Changchun, Nov. 23. With a view to implementing the recently proclaimed oil monopoly in Manchukuo, and taking over the supplies of oil held by foreign interests in the state, the Government has appropriated 600,000 yen to cover its initial expenses.

It is expected that the Government will move immediately to take up the oil supplies in the three Eastern Provinces. An official of the new monopoly service reports that the following supplies of oil, stocked at Dairen alone, will be seized:

192,000 cans belonging to the Standard Oil Company; 630,000 cans belonging to the Texas Oil Company; 60,000 cans belonging to the Asiatic Petroleum Company; and 384,000 cans belonging to various other concerns.—Reuter.

CANTON'S BID

Canton, Nov. 23. In regard to the negotiations now proceeding between the Canton authorities and the representatives of three leading foreign oil firms—the Standard Oil Company, Asiatic Petroleum Company and Texaco Oil Company—for a loan, it is stated that the proposed loan amounts to $5,000,000 instead of $10,000,000, as was previously reported.

The terms under discussion include the assignment of the Petrol tax as security. In return for the loan the Canton Government would agree to accord equal treatment to both foreign and domestic oil products in the Kwangtung market.—Central News.

RETURN TO MOSCOW

Nanking, Nov. 23. Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, arrived in the capital from Peking last evening to call on Mr. Wang Ching-wai and Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. When interviewed, he said he had decided to resume his duties at Moscow at the expiration of his present leave. He denied that any diplomatic significance attached to his present visit.—Central News.

BRITISH MINISTER TO CHINA AT SHAMEEN

ROUND OF OFFICIAL FUNCTIONS

TRAVELLING WITH FAMILY

Canton, Nov. 22. His Excellency Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Minister to China, accompanied by Lady Theodosia Cadogan, the Misses Cadogan, Mr. J. N. Behrens, Secretary of Legation, and Mr. G. W. Aldington, Private Secretary, arrived at Shameen to-day at 4 p.m. in H.M.S. Falmouth, under the command of Commander F. J. Walker, R.N.

H.B.M. Consul-General, accompanied by Mr. Li Luk-chao, representing the Provincial Government, Colonel C. W. Leung, representing H. E. General Chan Chai-long, and H.B.M. Consul, called on H.M. Minister in H.M.S. Falmouth a few minutes after her arrival.

At 4.20 p.m. the Minister landed at the British Jetty, where he was received by H.B.M. Consul-General and Staff, the Chairman of the Municipal Council and leading British residents. The Naval Guard of Honour was inspected, and the Minister then proceeded to H.B.M. Consulate-General where a second Guard of Honour of Indian Police was inspected.

In the evening the Minister, Lady Theodosia Cadogan, Miss Cadogan and the staff of the British Consulate-General were entertained by H.B.M. Consul-General and Mrs. Phillips at a private dinner party given at their residence. On Friday, visits will be exchanged between H.B.M. Minister and leading Chinese officials. He will later be entertained at the Victoria Hotel, Shameen, for luncheon by the Canton British Chamber of Commerce. In the afternoon the Chairman of the Provincial Government of Kwangtung will give a dinner in his honour.

On Saturday Sir Alexander will be entertained at luncheon with other foreign guests by H.B.M. Consul-General. From 5 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. there will be a reception for foreign and Chinese guests at H.B.M. Consulate-General to meet H.B.M. Minister and Lady Theodosia Cadogan. In the evening of the same day the Mayor of Canton will entertain the Minister and party for dinner.—Our Own Correspondent.

FIERCE FIRES IN VIRGINIA

ONE MAN KILLED

Charleston, Nov. 22. The West Virginian forests in this vicinity are a whirled fury of flames, fanned by a high wind and threatening terrific destruction. Over 250 fires are raging at the moment, almost uncontrollably sweeping the densely wooded mountains of this state.

The fires have already destroyed several thousand acres of timber land and have surrounded a number of small towns, which, however, are not considered in immediate danger.

Two thousand fire-fighters throughout the state are waging a gruelling battle with the flames. They have won control in a few instances but on many fronts are losing ground. One man has been killed by a falling tree at Zion Mountain. Rangers are hoping that rain will come and help them quench the blaze.—Reuter.

CONTRADICTS U.S. REPORT

MADE NO COMMENT ON NAVAL TALKS

INTERVIEWER INSISTS FACTS ARE CORRECT

Tokyo, Nov. 23.

Admiral Saito, former Premier of Japan, to-day flatly contradicted reports of his alleged comments in the Christian Science Monitor upon the London naval conversations, and denied that he had authorised the publication of an attack upon Japanese and other jingoists.

The reported attack on the sabre-rattling militarists and big naval advocates, and attributed to Admiral Saito, and the declaration that "the Naval Conference must succeed" for the peace of the world, also said to have been authorised by him, appeared in the Monitor on November 21 and were published all over the world, subsequently.

(The report appeared in the Hongkong Telegraph of that date.)

Admiral Saito declares: "I have seen no representative of the Christian Science Monitor in recent months. I never contributed to such a newspaper any article on the naval talks now proceeding in London. But early in August I approved an article by a freelance writer which touched neither upon naval matters nor disarmament matters in any way."

The "ghost" writer of the Monitor's story, a man named Hilscher, states that that article was written in August as an outcome of several interviews summing up Admiral Saito's views on the naval outlook.

Admiral Saito, says Mr. Hilscher, after perusal and correction of the article, approved it with his signature.—Reuter.

M. BERTHELOT DEAD IN PARIS

Paris, Nov. 22. M. Philippe Joseph Louis Berthelot, former Secretary-General of the French Foreign Ministry, and one of the most distinguished diplomats of his time, died here to-day.

He was the son of the famous chemist, the late Marcellin Berthelot, and was born in 1866, commencing his diplomatic career in 1887.

After serving abroad he became the Director of the Asiatic Section of the Foreign Office in 1904 and in 1914 he was made Director of Political Affairs.

He was one of M. Clemenceau's most trusted assistants and took an important part in the Peace Treaty negotiations.

In 1920 he was appointed Secretary-General of the League of Nations. (Continued on Page 4.)

H.K. To Australia Air Mail

December 17 will see the inauguration of the Singapore-Australia air mail line, according to advices from a reliable local source this morning.

The air mail services will be an extension of the existing Imperial Airways route from Great Britain to Singapore and will be operated by the Queensland and Northern Territory Air Services.

The hop from Singapore to Darwin is scheduled for 24 hours and when the mails arrive at the latter port they will be distributed by internal services over the whole of Australia. Mails for New Zealand will be carried by those planes and sent from Sydney across to the islands by steamer.

It is proposed to institute a weekly mail service from Singapore, leaving on Mondays.

Local mails will be carried over this route, being taken by the regular lines to Singapore. It is learned that the charges will be 35 cents per quarter ounce and 60 cents per half ounce.

New British Picture-Making Colony

SEARCH FOR SITE

The Cosmopolitan Picture Corporation (Ltd.) is looking for a site in the Sheffield district on which a film colony is to be created. It is proposed to erect studios with a large floor space surrounded by a garden village, at which homes would be built for artists, technicians, and other studio workers. A number of sites have been inspected and are under consideration.

A. E. Frenquelli, the Continental director, is mentioned as producer and it is hoped to start producing at an early date. It is estimated that upwards of 45 films a year can be produced in studios such as the promoters have in mind.

The possibilities of Sheffield which apart from its industrial activities had the peak scenery of Derbyshire on its doorstep have often been discussed.

Mr. C. H. Wybrow, managing director of the Corporation, says it is an ideal centre for film production. On the one hand, he said on an interview, you have the biggest steel centre in Great Britain, while immediately on its borders there is scenery which can compare with Switzerland, while the wide stretches of moorland compare with Arizona.

It is understood that one of the most favoured sites is the aerodrome at Norton, Woodseats. This would be an ideal spot and the aerodrome buildings, which cover a wide area, would be excellent for production purposes.

COLOUR FILMS

Alexander Korda, managing director of London Film Productions, has joined the board of Colourgravure (Ltd.). This system of filming in colour will be used in a full-length film as soon as the new London Films studios are completed next spring.

It is believed that the Hillman process for the production of moving pictures, patents of which are owned by Colourgravure (Ltd.), will enable colour pictures to be made at only a slightly higher cost than the present black and white.

BELATED HONEYMOON

Laura la Plante has left London on a belated honeymoon.

Married in June last to Irving Asher, managing director of Warner Bros. First National, Laura la Plante was so busy, both on the screen and stage, that a honeymoon trip at the time of marriage was out of the question. Now they are taking a trip during which they will visit Paris, Monte Carlo, Rome, Venice, and Capri.

On their return, Laura la Plante will prepare for a new film in which she will co-star with Reginald Denny at Teddington.

AMATEUR FILM FESTIVAL

A Scottish festival of amateur films, organised under the auspices of the Motor Film Producing Society, is to be held in Glasgow on December 8.

The festival will be similar to that held by the Society last year, when Victor Saville adjudicated the entries, but will take a more comprehensive form. Entries will be accepted from societies and clubs in Great Britain, and also individuals resident in Scotland, while there is also to be a class for talking and sound pictures.

The details of the groups are as follows:

Class A—Story films open to clubs in Great Britain.
Class B—Interest films open to clubs in Great Britain.
Class C—Interest films open to individuals resident in Scotland.
Class D—Sound films of any description open to clubs or individuals in Great Britain—35 mm. only.

WHEN MAKING GINGERBREAD

GINGERBREAD is liable to sink in the middle when baked in a large tin. Do not make the mixture too moist, and although the oven must not be too hot, a good moderate heat is required. Be careful to measure the treacle or syrup correctly. If too much is used this might also make it heavy. Avoid opening the oven too often before the cake has had time to rise properly.

RADIO "CROONER" SIGNED

Wireless listeners will be interested to learn that Les Allen, one of Britain's most popular dance-band "crooners," has been signed up by Gaumont-British, and will appear in "The Code," a musical subject due to start production at the Gainsborough Studios at Islington, under Maurice Elvey's direction. Allen will co-star with Cyril Maude, Vera Pearce, Albert Burdon, and Ann Lee.

Les is a Canadian, and hails from Toronto. He came to Britain originally with Hal Swain and his band, and was not at that time a singer, but played the tenor saxophone. His first experience as a "crooner" was a chance occurrence, during the temporary absence of the band's official vocalist. He became later one of Henry Hall's B.B.C. dance band. This is his first venture in films.

GRACIE FIELDS'S NEXT

GEORGE BANCROFT'S TANGLED AFFAIRS

George Bancroft, the film actor, has been ordered by the Los Angeles Court to pay 20 dollars ($350) lawyers' fees to Mrs. Edna Bancroft, his first wife, who brought an amended separate maintenance order against him. These sums, the Court ordered, were to be paid pending his appeal.

MODEL CONVICTS

STUDENTS DELVE IN PRISON MINDS

GAOL-BIRDS KNOW ANSWERS

Jefferson City, Missouri, Nov. 9. Convicts at the Missouri penitentiary may not be smart enough to stay out of prison, but no fresh college students can fool them with a lot of questions and answers.

The prisoners laboriously underwent a two-hour test with University of Missouri sociology students firing the questions and the prisoners answering them, honour bound not to look at each other's papers.

The questions were from the standard army alpha test for intelligence. The students hope to find out why convicts are convicts.

There was much glee in the assembly hall with the first easy questions but when the questions got around to classification of such words as "equivocal" and "lugubrious" the groans that went up were decidedly the latter.

The convicts had a hard time deciding why "it is better to fight than to run."

They were given three choices, namely:

1. Cowards are shot;
2. It is more honourable;
3. If you run, you may get shot in the back.

Three out of every five convicts thought the possibility of getting shot in the back was reason enough for a man to fight.

Everybody got one certain question right, but there was some suspicion that a former confidence man had muttered the right answer a little too loudly. The question read:

"If a grocer should give you too much money in making change, would you

1. Buy some candy from him with it?
2. Give it to the first poor man you met?
3. Tell him his mistake?"

Every convict had number 3 on his paper.—United Press.

HONGKONG'S TRADE GAIN

Canadian trade with Hongkong in the latest year for which figures are available (the twelve months ended August) shows a substantial increase. Both imports and exports are higher. Canadian imports from Hongkong rose from $555,380 (Canadian) to $658,063. Exports to Hongkong of Canadian produce rose from $1,100,165 to $1,241,335.

from the previous order, under which he was required to pay £800 lawyers' fees.

A demand for temporary alimony by Mrs. Edna Bancroft was refused by the Judge on September 7, when the £800 costs against her husband were granted.

At the same time an order was made restraining George Bancroft from making over his property to his present wife, Mrs. Octavia Bancroft.

This rule was given pending the trial of Mrs. Edna Bancroft's maintenance suit, in which Mrs. Octavia Bancroft, the actor's present wife, is cited as co-respondent.

George Bancroft alleges that records show that Mrs. Edna Bancroft was not legally divorced from her first husband when she married him at Buffalo in 1913, and that, therefore, she is not his wife.

IN SHELTER OF DICTATORSHIP

By EYRE CARTER

"GIVE US A KING," the Israelites clamoured about three thousand years ago, and the cry is being taken up by nation after nation to-day as discouragement spreads with the apparent failure of democracy to solve the complicated problems, mainly economic rather than political, which beset modern governments. There is, of course, a superficial difference; except in Serbia and possibly now in Bulgaria, kingship has latterly been shorn of most of its authority, and a new label has been invented for the old medicine; men call for a leader. Signor Mussolini, as the Duce, was the first to give the word the status of an official national title, but he left it to the more academically-minded Germans to reduce it to a system—the Führer-prinzip, or the "leader-principle."

This Nordic concept is worth examination if only because it may be accepted uncritically, as a sort of magic formula, by citizens of other countries who do not pause to ask themselves whether it is well adapted to their own mentality as it appears to be to the race which evolved it. Here is a brief statement, taken from a National-Socialist publication, the Deutscher Arbeitsdienst für Volk und Heimat: "In leadership the task of primary importance is that of creating new human beings, already quoted: '(The leader's) fundamental laws of code is: I must determine the Nordic being and aristocratic future. . . . The influence of the (Aristos means 'the best' and kratos means 'to rule'. . . . of his spirit into a lake—the soul. Honestly, struggle, loyalty, faith, justice, being laws essential to the existence of the community, are entrusted to the 'best' of the community, to the man who understands their deepest meaning and out of it is able to show the community the way. . . . Hence there cannot be more than one leader. Unity can only be preserved by the one man, honestly only by the most honest, struggle only by the strongest fighter and victor over others, loyalty only by the most loyal, faith only by the one nearest God and justice only by the most just."

With this concept, and its practical exemplification in the events occurring in Germany on June 30 of this year, we may contrast the picture of Abraham Lincoln just before the presidential election in 1864. His first term of office, heavy with the responsibility of a conflict accepted in the defence of the two great principles of unity and liberty, was closing in an atmosphere of despondency. He knew that the strong and courageous leadership which he had given and could continue to give in profile was no necessary as that which General Grant was giving in the field. But he was prepared to take the risk, which seemed almost a certainty, of that leadership passing to another, rather than deprive his fellow citizens examination if only because it may be accepted uncritically, as a sort of magic formula, by citizens of other countries who do not pause to ask themselves whether it is well adapted to their own mentality as it appears to be to the race which evolved it. Here is a brief statement, taken from a National-Socialist publication, the Deutscher Arbeitsdienst für Volk und Heimat: "In leadership the task of primary importance is that of creating new human beings, already quoted: '(The leader's) fundamental laws of code is: I must determine the Nordic being and aristocratic future. . . . The influence of the (Aristos means 'the best' and kratos means 'to rule'. . . . of his spirit into a lake—the soul. Honestly, struggle, loyalty, faith, justice, being laws essential to the existence of the community, are entrusted to the 'best' of the community, to the man who understands their deepest meaning and out of it is able to show the community the way. . . . Hence there cannot be more than one leader. Unity can only be preserved by the one man, honestly only by the most honest, struggle only by the strongest fighter and victor over others, loyalty only by the most loyal, faith only by the one nearest God and justice only by the most just."

POPULAR CHOICE.

To-day, of course, Herr Hitler maintains that he, too, bases his ascendancy upon popular choice. But the vital point lies in the means by which the people exercise their choice. Here is one method, gleaned from the German article of creating new human beings, already quoted: "(The leader's) fundamental laws of code is: I must determine the Nordic being and aristocratic future. . . . The influence of the (Aristos means 'the best' and kratos means 'to rule'. . . . of his spirit into a lake—the soul. Honestly, struggle, loyalty, faith, justice, being laws essential to the existence of the community, are entrusted to the 'best' of the community, to the man who understands their deepest meaning and out of it is able to show the community the way. . . . Hence there cannot be more than one leader. Unity can only be preserved by the one man, honestly only by the most honest, struggle only by the strongest fighter and victor over others, loyalty only by the most loyal, faith only by the one nearest God and justice only by the most just."

Of course the argument in favour of this type of leadership is that it alone makes possible the rapid executive decisions, backed by mass acceptance, which are necessitated by the complicated nature of modern political and economic conditions. Democracy, if it is to survive, must answer this challenge, must clear itself from the charges of ineptitude and vacillation, of indecision and corruption, to which defects in the parliamentary system have given some weight. For unless democracy does establish its own answer, it may find that the inexorable logic of events has placed it in the grip of a system of thought which, though essentially incompatible with individual liberty and self-determination, does present an attractive surface of organised and efficient achievement.

The prettiest baby in America is pictured here, for thousands of Chicago World's Fair voters can't be wrong. Wearing her honours gracefully, Marilyn Yvonne Miller is winner of the $2,000 first prize in a contest, in which more than 114,000 babies were entrants.

GERMANIC CONCEPTION

It may be urged "that the concept of leadership already presented is a purely Germanic one, possibly adapted to its native soil, but unsuitable for propagation abroad. The same sort of thing was said a few years ago by Signor Mussolini in his declaration that Fascism was an Italian product 'not for export.' But the seeds of Fascism have apparently floated pollen-wise into receptive or unguarded fields across the Alps. Is the

The first method makes the club-room and its committees the nurseries of government; it trains the individual in that self-discipline and sense of responsibility which enable him in turn

"leader-principle" also trying to find lodgment abroad? This question becomes easy to answer if two things are remembered. One is that the despotic tendencies of egotism, aggression and emotionalism present themselves as universal aspects of the human mind. The other is that "a nation gets the government that it deserves"; in other words, the chief executive and legislative institutions of a country will reflect the mode of thought expressed by its citizens in their more intimate groupings. There are, for example, two ways of running a sports club, a literary society, or a chamber of commerce. One is for the members to take an active part, by initiating proposals and discussing them in

In proportion as this principle can be extended to factory and workshop, store and office, through reasonable consultation between the management and the workers, democracy will become a reality in everyone's life; more than that, it will bear its true

IMPORTS HIGHER; EXPORTS LOWER

Canadian imports from China in the twelve months ending August 1934 were $2,612,629 (Canadian) as compared with $1,808,585 in the previous twelve months.

Chinese imports from Canada in the same period were valued at $5,366,768 as compared with $7,872,439.

Canada purchases a wide variety of articles from China. Prominent on the list were nuts, of which Canadians bought nearly a million dollars' worth in the year. Peanut oil to the value of over half a million dollars was also on the list. Other important items were tea, undressed furs, eggs, manufactures of silk, wool carpets, manufactures of brass, and fireworks.

An equally wide variety of commodities is transported annually from Canada to China. Wheat and wheat flour are important items; as are rubber tyres, fish (dried, salted and pickled), lumber, paper, silver, zinc, ammonium sulphate and aluminium.

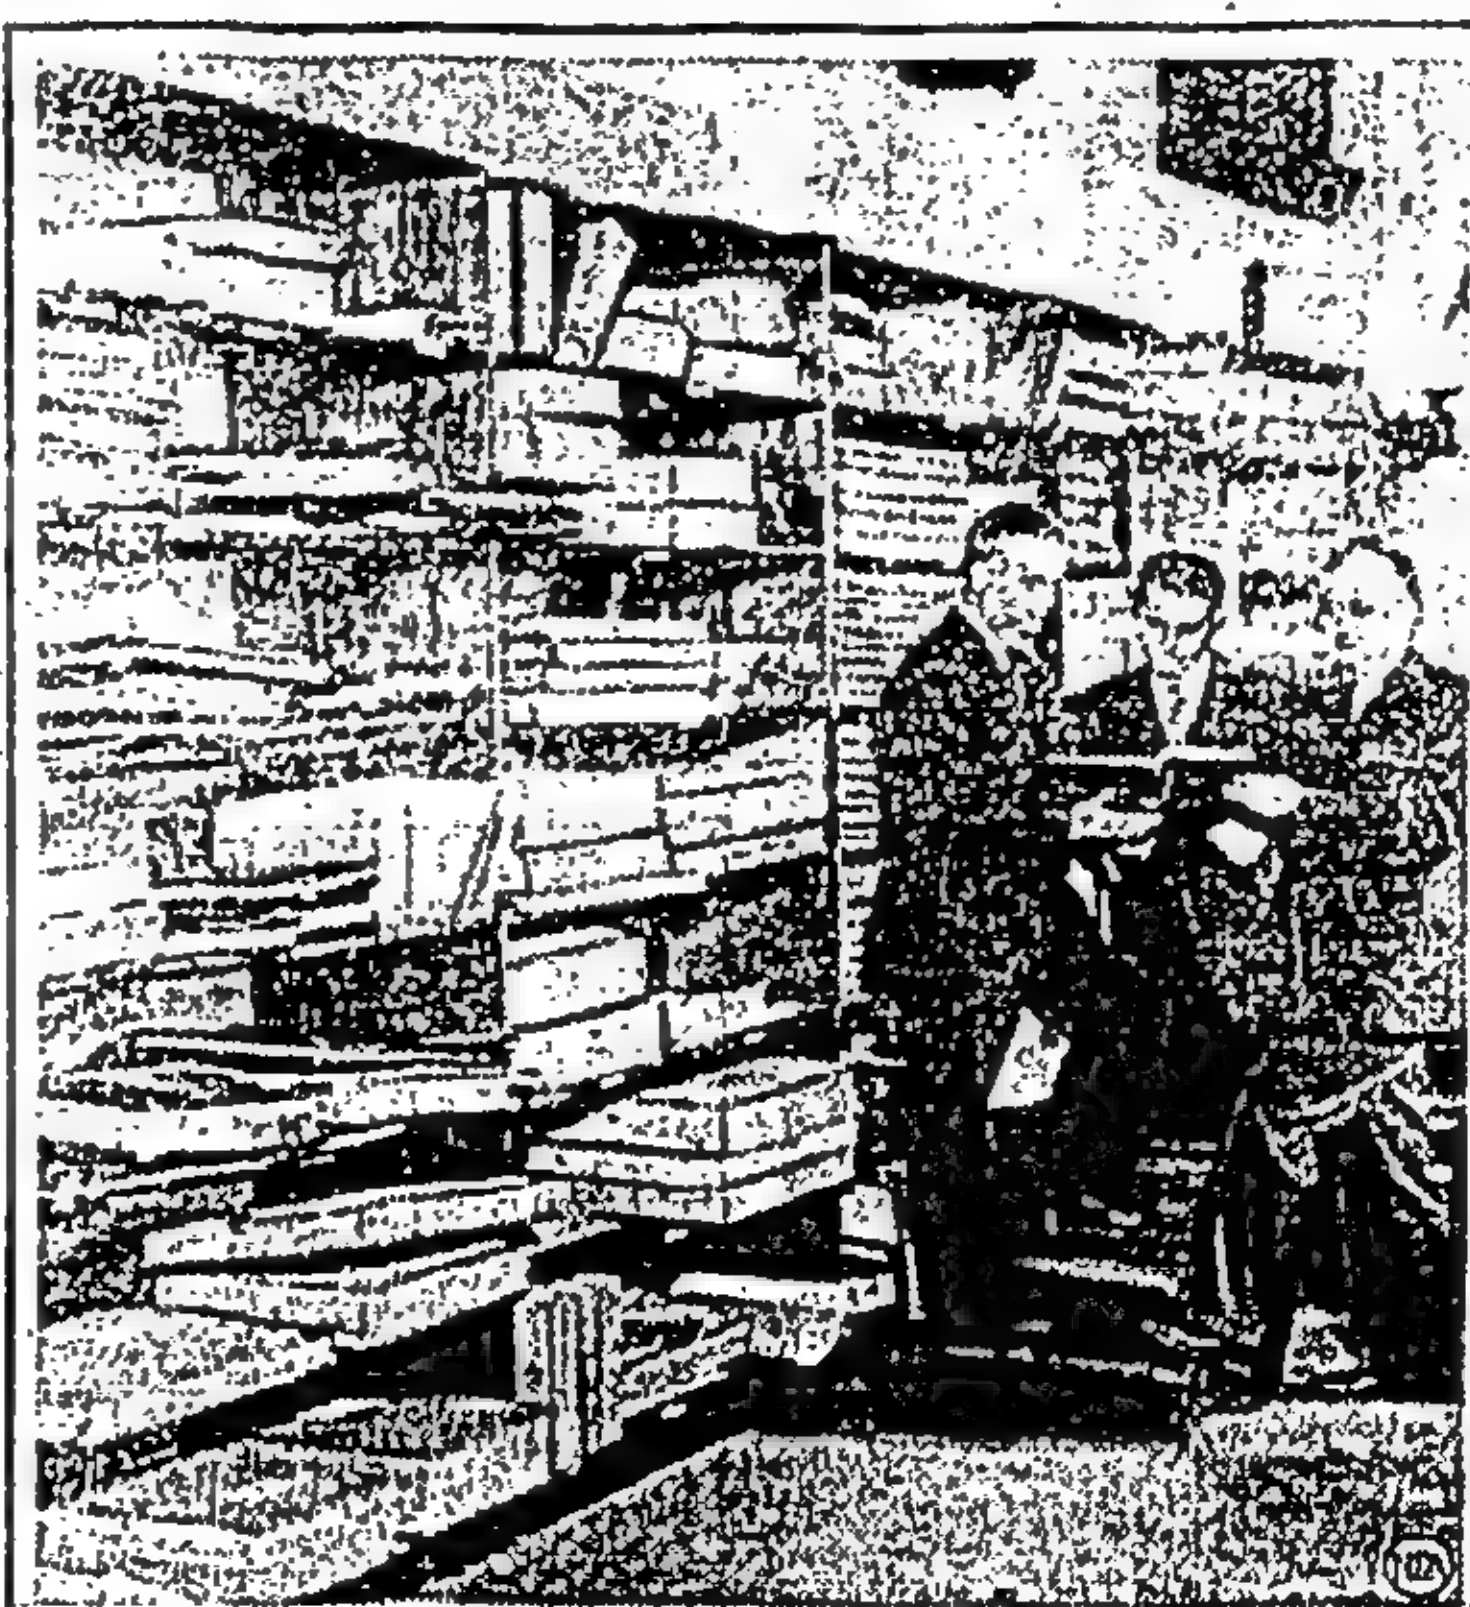

Others on the list are: musical instruments, films, electrical apparatus, alcoholic beverages, cobalt oxide and automobile parts.

meaning — government by the whole of the people acting as a unit.

MISLEADING

The second alternative, to allow progressive measures to be entirely planned and carried through from above, frequently gives the impression of speedy advance, and therefore of efficiency. But a decision is not necessarily sound just because it is quickly taken, and the effect of depriving the rank and file of exercising initiative and judgment was well described by Signor N. O. Corbino, who, speaking to the Italian Senate in January, 1934, referred to the tendency of Italians to turn to the Duce for the solution of all their difficulties, and said: "Let me deplore the spread of such a habit which might even give rise to a generation of individuals averse either by laziness or by fear from assuming the necessary responsibility. The fact that the Chief becomes every day bigger should not authorize the Italians to make themselves every day smaller."

Democracy's alternative to the domination of an individual will, supported though it be by the emotionally produced assent of the masses, has so far been to emphasize the "will of the majority," and that is why democracy has not yet reached full fruition. More numbers, relying on the same foundation of the human will, do not suffice to establish the best government, the government of good will. In fact, numbers often spell weakness and uncertainty, for, as Bernard Shaw says in "The Apple Cart," "One man that has a mind and knows it can always beat ten men that haven't and don't. Democracy will gather strength in proportion as it obeys the Apostle Paul's injunction to 'let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.' Unity of purpose cannot be achieved on the basis of the strongest or the humanly 'best' personality, but on the progressive realization by each member of the community of his true individuality as governed by the universal Principle of all good."

They had to build these special shelves to hold the documentary evidence at Samuel Insull's trial.

Even though the Socialist rebels put up such a terrific fight in Spain that the result was in doubt for several days, they did not have opportunity to bring all of their arms into action. Government troops are shown here investigating a socialist arsenal seized while the revolution was at its height.

Scenes such as that depicted above were a common sight throughout the Chinese City recently when Mayor Wu's Emergency Mobilisation Order was put into force. "Fires" and "floods" were fought and rebellious mobs quelled, while ambulances rushed through the streets to the accompaniment of clanging bells and shrieking sirens. Picture shows a "casualty" being removed from the scene of a "disturbance" in Kung Woo Road, Chapel, later being taken to a first aid station for attention.

Secretary-General of the Foreign Office and his policy included rapprochement with Germany, which did not please M. Poincaré.

In May, 1922, he was charged before a disciplinary tribunal, presided over by M. Poincaré, with misusing his position to favour the Banque Industrielle de Chine, of which his brother was a manager. It was alleged in his reports to the Finance Ministry he had made out the position of the bank to be more satisfactory than he knew it to be in order to induce the Ministry to assist it; and, above all, that he sent official telegrams to the representatives of France abroad asking them to intervene on behalf of his brother's bank.

LONG SUSPENSION

The tribunal suspended him from office for ten years. M. Poincaré's opponents always maintained that M. Berthelot's fate was due to political antagonisms.

In February, 1925, under the Amnesty Act, he was restored to the Foreign Office list as "ambassadeur a disposition," and the dossier of the case against him was officially burned. Two months later his re-appointment by M. Briand as Secretary-General of the Foreign Office was announced.

The Locarno Pact was the first important event to follow his reinstatement. A secret Foreign Office document which an American reporter managed to secure for a press magazine in 1928, was said to have been in M. Berthelot's handwriting. The affair caused a great sensation and caused unjustified press attacks on M. Berthelot.

When M. Herriot became Premier in 1932, he sent M. Berthelot on leave for an indefinite period, but five months later he was recalled to his post. In 1933, however, he retired, on the ground of failing health.—Reuter and Special.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal's report on yesterday's market:—Stocks were upward due to pressure being lifted from railroad issues and the improved demand in steel issues due to traders anticipating a substantial pick up in the steel industry. Alcohol issues gained strength owing to the statement of the National Distillers will be a good demand for market. That it was necessary to market their recent stock offering due to improved sales. Utility issues were aided by indications that the New York Public Service Commission would raise the rates if the city persisted in taxing utilities any further. Bonds were steady with a good demand for United States Government issues. The Curb Exchange moved upward due to a demand for Oil, Utility and Alcohol issues. Wheat prices were downward due to reports that 19,000,000 bushels of denatured French Wheat will be shipped here for feeding purposes, affecting the strength of corn.

S. C. & F. New York office cables:—The stock market drifted irregularly higher in a dull session. General news is favourable with the electric output at a four year high level. The Press reports that an important bloc of Recovery Administration officials oppose the codification of Utility. Mr. Jesse Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has denied that there have been any major rail disturbances. The Federal Housing Administration reports that $100,000,000 of private capital is ready to begin building immediately. Business done—770,000. New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:—Cotton: Foreign growth competition is believed to be diminishing. There are renewed rumours of a barter sale of 700,000 bales to Germany. A Government announcement of a 25% acreage reduction is generally expected. The market was very steady.

Other photos will include group taken at the wedding of Sergeant C. Allen and Miss Elizabeth Pitts. His Excellency the Governor inspecting the Fire Brigade, and a group of Queen's College Projects.

Grain: Better Argentine weather conditions, the rumoured arrangement of the import of five million quintals of denatured French wheat and five cargoes of Argentine corn, rains in the winter wheat belt and discouraging news regarding the Budapest Conference point to two-sided markets. It is predicted that any severe cold wave may stimulate demand for feed grains, but we continue to believe in profit taking on good upturns in both corn and wheat. We hear that five cargoes of Argentine corn have been contracted at buyers' option for Montreal, Atlantic or the Gulf Ports.

Rubber: The market was firmer but featureless on an improvement in outside buying.

REACTION ON INDIA REPORT

In Britain maintains with equal vigour that the reforms go too far and too fast. In between, there is an immense body of moderate opinion, both in India and Britain, which recognises the momentous nature of the proposals, but is unafraid.

THE GROUPS

In this connection, it is interesting to observe that in the Government Committee itself there were two groups of approximately equal strength who opposed the main course taken by the majority. Five Conservative members were broadly at one in thinking the proposals too far-reaching, and four Labour representatives suggested an alternative plan to the safeguards and checks proposed in the report.

The majority, however, included not only Government representatives and members who have been engaged on the problem through the past seven years, but everyone of those statesmen—Sir Austen Chamberlain, Lord Derby, Lord Hardinge, Lord Zetland, and the Archbishop of Canterbury—who came fresh and uncommitted to consideration of the White Paper.

NEED FOR SAFEGUARDS

The Chairman of the Joint Select Committee (Lord Lifford) referred to the subject of safeguards in a broadcast talk on the Committee's report to-night. Responsible Government, he pointed out, is not an automatic device which can be manufactured to specification anywhere. It depends, for successful working, on the existence of certain conditions which are as essential as they are difficult to define, and the Committee feel no doubt that if free play were given to the powerful forces, be they communal, racial or religious, which would be set in motion by an unqualified system of Parliamentary Government in India, the consequences would be disastrous to India and perhaps irreparable.

They are satisfied that the grant of responsible Government, if the grant is to be a reality, demands the presence of certain statutory safeguards. These in some form or other, find a place in most Constitutions, and so less in the Constitution of Britain, though their existence is often forgotten, because with Britain's long Parliamentary tradition, the need for emphasising them has largely disappeared, and because they are, for the most part, based on custom and convention and not on any statutory enactment.

NECESSARY COMPLEMENT.

Safeguards of this kind are not only not inconsistent with some form of responsible Government, but, in the present circumstances of India, they are in truth a necessary complement to any form of it, and without them it could have little hope of success.

It is in exact proportions as Britain's Indian fellow subjects show themselves to be capable of taking and exercising responsibility and are able to supply those elements in their political life, which only experience can give, that both the need for safeguards and their use will, as in Great Britain, disappear.—British Wireless.

Foreign Minister of France, at Marcellles. The note was handed to the League Council to-night. The note recalls that only last June the Yugo-Slav Government drew the attention of the Council to the criminal acts of terrorists in Hungary and to the help they were receiving from the Hungarian authorities.

Yugo-Slavia, the note goes on, signed an agreement at Belgrade in 1921, to which Hungary also adhered, its aim, settling the frontier questions, but inquiry had demonstrated that the assassinations were organised and carried out with the participation of refugee terrorists in Hungary who continued to enjoy the same complicity as previously, the note said.

EARLIER COMPLAINTS

The assassins and accomplices include terrorists who have been subject to Yugo-Slav complaints already, the note points out. These complaints were sent to Hungary. The terrorists had gathered in Hungary until the eve of the crime.

The results of the inquiry had made absolutely clear the Hungarian responsibility for aid and support given terrorist action on the part of certain Yugo-Slav emigres, the note adds.

The note declares that Yugo-Slavs desire that complete light should be shed on the circumstances in which this dreadful crime was prepared and executed, and it is absolutely necessary that the responsibilities involved should be denounced before the highest organ of the international community.

The Yugo-Slav Government asks the Secretary-General of the League to place the matter on the agenda for the next session of the Council.

The Czecho-Slovakian and Rumanian ministers are handing notes to the League approving and supporting the Yugo-Slav note, and pointing out that the same causes might disturb the peace of their frontiers.—Reuter Special.

ference which was due to take place under terms of the Washington Treaty in 1935. This was not a naval conference, but the discussions preliminary to it. The Washington Treaty provided that there shall be a meeting between the parties in 1935 whether the Washington Treaty was terminated by notice or not.

Talks had been bilateral and were in continuation of conversations which took place last summer with representatives of United States, France and Italy. In event of denunciation of Washington Treaty, representatives of its parties before end of present year naval conference must still take place under terms of that treaty during next year. There was similar provision in London Naval Treaty for conference in 1935 for purpose of negotiating fresh treaty.

JAPAN'S PROPOSALS.

It was common knowledge that the Japanese Government was not content with the treaty ratio 5-5-3 laid down in the Washington Treaty. They had made, during the present conversations with America and Britain, several proposals, the general purpose of which was to establish in substitution for the present treaty system one under which each power would be able to build up to what had been called a common upper limit representing the total amount of ships they were entitled to possess. There was distinction, said Sir John, between the common upper limit as a matter of right and actual size for ships that were built under that limit. It was not possible for him to give details of the Japanese proposals or to make a declaration as to the matters still under discussion.

"I can say this," he continued, "the British Government will regard a breakdown of the system of naval limitation as a great disaster for everybody, not merely for the powers now in consultation, but for the world at large. The financial and political evils which would result from a renewed race in armament are too apparent for me to enlarge upon them now, and the representatives of the British Government will continue these conversations—there is no intention at all of breaking them off—in the most friendly spirit as long as there is any prospect of finding a way round these difficulties."

SECURITY FIRST

"Equality in security, that every great naval state should feel that its security compares favourably with others, is the unquestioned right of all of us; but that does not necessarily mean, of course, that all fleets should in fact be equal in size. That depends upon the nature of the responsibilities and other things in each case, and whole purpose of our discussions now is to reach, if possible, a basis on which an understanding can be reached without endangering the sense of security of anybody. If that point could approximately be reached, then we shall feel the way has been adequately prepared for next year's conference, subject, of course, to the views of signatories of treaties with France and Italy, for example."

"There have been many press reports at different times that the two powers have been putting their heads together to arrange confidentially and via a via

INDIAN REFORMS

Whilst the more extreme elements both in England and in India are disappointed at the report of the Joint Parliamentary Committee setting forth definite proposals for Indian constitutional reform, a close reading of the summarised version of this ponderous document conveys the impression that a problem of extreme complexity has been quite reasonably handled. It has been a laborious process, spread over a period of six years, to evolve the plan now put forward, and in the course of the protracted investigations representative Indians and Britons have been called into close consultation. The magnitude of the task will be realised when it is pointed out that the reforms involve conversion of the present semi-bureaucratic system of government into a responsibly governed Federation of States and Provinces. They necessitate a complete reconstruction of the existing Constitution. When it is borne in mind that the units which will eventually compose the Federation are not at present in existence as separate entities, some idea can be gained of the immensity of the task. It is further to be remembered that there is no precedent on which to work in carrying out this tremendous change. In its main features, the report of the Committee does not greatly deviate from the White Paper proposals, which were based on autonomy for the Provinces of British India, with certain special powers retained in the hands of the Governor, and a Federation of the States and British India, with central responsibility, subject to certain safeguards. If anything, however, the report proceeds a somewhat more cautious line. Objection is taken by Labour dissentients to the suggested indirect method of election at the centre, and also to the proposed creation of Second Chambers in the Legislatures. It is also urged from the same quarter that India should be able to attain Dominion status by a process of internal development, without recourse to further Acts of Parliament. Such criticism was to be expected. As against it may be placed the complaints which the "Die-Hards" of the Conservative Party can be expected to advance that the proposals, so far from being too rigid, are dangerously liberal. The Committee, however, has taken the course of a happy mean, in which it is reasonable to think, wisdom will be found. It can certainly be said that the proposals put forward represent a distinct advance along the road of self-government, and what is more, they clearly betoken a deep sincerity in dealing with a problem of unexampled difficulty. Even on their present basis, the recommendations imply the carrying

NOTES OF THE DAY

ALARMISTS ANSWERED

In the tumult of accusations which have been heard against Germany in Paris, one voice has been raised to call to order a public which seemed infected with panic. It was that of the capable and clear-headed chief of the Air Ministry, General Denain, who knows what he is talking about. On several occasions recently the French press has burst into print with tales of enormous German air armaments. In London, certain newspapers warned against the menace from across the Rhine where some "authorities" insisted a fleet of war planes 40,000 strong could be mustered within a few months. Such allegations seemed a trifle far-fetched to most observers at home and abroad, but the credulous were worried. They were more concerned still when the Daily Mail announced that half of Britain's air fleet of 600 machines was antiquated. What could an Air Force of such a size and quality do against an invading armada live to ten times as numerous? It now appears, however, that the German "menace" is much exaggerated. General Denain declares that Germany's air strength will not be more than 1,100 machines at the beginning of 1935. There is no denying the fact that Germany is increasing her air armaments; but who is not? The fact that she is purchasing aeroplane engines in Britain and America should not cause Parisians, whose air fleet is the largest in the world, very great anxiety; nor England, either.

COMING TO HONGKONG

Mr. Juan Trippe, head of the Pan-American Airways, has definitely announced that his big Sikorsky flying boats will presently commence their trans-Pacific schedule. They will make test flights in February, 1935. That is only three months away. When they leave California, they will fly via Hawaii, to Manila, and they are supposed to be coming to Hongkong. We have not yet been told what is the local official reaction to this scheme, and it would be interesting to know how far the Pan-American Airways planes will be assisted in their projected service to China. Hongkong may feel some mortification that Imperial Airways has not taken the first step towards linking the Far East with the Occidental capitals, but business men will assuredly welcome any trans-Pacific air link which will bring the Colony within three days' journey of America.

NATURE, THE POET

The poets of some thousands of years hence ought to have a pretty fine time of it, for Sir James Jeans, famous British scientist, predicts that in the future we shall have moonlight all night long, every night in the year and no one who reads poetry needs to be told what this will do for poets. Our moon, says Sir James, is going to draw nearer and nearer to the earth; and eventually it will get so close that it will break up and give us an earth-circling fringe of moon-fragments. This, of course, will rob us of our moon—but these myriads of fragments will reflect the sun's light down to us at night, and every night will be made bright by moonlight. These scientific gentlemen can draw some strange pictures for us, when they begin looking into the future. Surely none is more pleasantly fantastic than this forecast of a time of perpetual moonlight. What an era for poets and for lovers!

U.S. NAVY'S PART

The Navy Department is going to help the American merchant marine ensure the safety of ships and passengers on the high seas. Senior naval officers will be detailed to make voyages on ships over which the Department of Commerce has jurisdiction, according to arrangements recently concluded between the Commerce and Navy Departments. They will inspect thoroughly the personnel and equipment of the ships. From their reports will come new systems of regulation. It is reported that new methods of disciplining and training merchant ships' crews will be one product of this innovation. It looks like an exceedingly sensible move. The watchful eyes of trained naval men can be depended upon to detect any flaws in equipment or construction, and a taste of discipline after the naval manner might not hurt crews that tend to get confused and panicky in time of crisis.

out of a tremendous experiment, charged with far-reaching possibilities. As a first step, they are in no sense niggardly in concept or illiberal in form. They are obviously intended to lead to even bigger concessions. But at the moment it is only right and proper that the guiding principles should rest on a policy of "hastening slowly."

MODERN VIEW OF SIAM KINGDOM

By SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS

SOON after the King of Siam again started on his travels last winter I arrived in Bangkok. A Regency had taken over the government. The capital was quiet and the people were as calm and cheerful as ever, but beneath the surface of things one could detect a feeling of uneasiness and uncertainty.

The leaders of the last revolutionary rising were in prison. Suspects were still being gathered in; the police were searching houses and offices; much subversive propaganda was in circulation by underground channels, and conversation on political topics was extremely guarded. The kingdom was impoverished and its finances were in a chaotic state. Anti-royalist sentiment manifested itself in many ways, and the influence of Communist agitators was apparent in certain sections of the so-called Republican movement.

I heard strong criticism of the King for having spent money lavishly on his previous tour of Europe and America. His lack of sales resistance in the United States, according to popular opinion in Bangkok, led to his being smothered in motor-cars and every other mechanical product likely to appeal to an enterprising and progressive monarch. He returned with an expensive account of staggering proportions which was received with consternation by a poverty-stricken Ministry of Finance.

And now he had gone off again on another circuit of the world, certainly to undergo a second operation on his eyes, but actually, in the opinion of his critical subjects, to increase his hoard of gadgets for which they could ill afford to pay.

I asked a member of the foreign colony who had lived for many years in Siam when the King was expected to return. "The King will not come back," was the surprising reply. "He has seen the handwriting on the wall. The revolutionary movement will rise again, and he realises that if he is here he will be assassinated. You will find him in the near future safely lodged in some foreign country, probably in England, with sufficient funds to ensure him a comfortable future."

He added darkly, "I would not be surprised if there were executions in Bangkok before the year is out."

If there are, the revolutionary spirit in Siam has entered a new phase. No revolt in our time has been conducted with such tact and restraint as the first upheaval, when the absolute authority of the Throne was challenged by a band of ambitious young men imbued with idealistic principles of democratic government. When the last coup took place Ministerial departments changed hands almost by appointment and outgoing incumbents were shown to the door at their convenience.

The Siamese are, with the exception of the Japanese, the politest people I have ever met. If they reach the stage of inflicting the death penalty upon their political opponents I am sure it will be done with every expression of regret.

They are intensely nationalistic. Extreme dignity marks their unfailing kindness to foreigners. The police guiding the curious

The Very Idea!

INTERVIEWING GEORGE

By Eddie "Castlerosse" Kelly

WHEN a humorist meets a humorist, how do they greet each other? Does their talk bubble over with wit and scintillate with epigram, or do they, even as you and I, descend to discussing such subjects as closing hours and the dollar quotation?

In the hope of solving this intriguing problem, the Telegraph arranged for Mr. Edward Kelly, its well known half-wit, to interview George, the other half-wit. The meeting of the two half-wits, and to relate, resulted in two full wits, the venue unfortunately being the Hongkong Hotel.

Now read on.

George: 'Ullio!

Mr. Kelly (politely): Good morning, George! I was wondering if you could lend me ten bucks until the end of the month?

George: Oh, you were, were you?

Mr. Kelly: Yes, I were... am. Why, a splendid fellow like you. What I mean to say... well, anyway, what's it feel like to be a humorist?

George (after long and morbid thought): I don't know.

Mr. Kelly: It must be awful to have to act the goat for a living.

George (cathartically): Yes. You're better off than I am. You don't have to act.

Mr. Kelly (sternly): George! Please remember that you are being interviewed for the Hongkong Telegraph. How did you come to take the name of George, and why haven't you a surname?

George (sulkily): My father gave it to me.

Mr. Kelly: Why?

George: Because it was his name, I guess.

Mr. Kelly: Oh! Your father's name was George and your mother's name was Georgina?

George: No. My name is George. Mr. Kelly: How did your father and mother know that your name was George?

George (fearfully): Hi! Don't knock my glass over.

Mr. Kelly: All that stuff you write in the "Very Idea" about beer. Do you ever get any real beer sent to you?

George: No, dammit. A mm'm got to buy his own here.

Mr. Kelly: Well, how is it you're nearly always blotto? I believe you're lying to me, you coughdrop addict.

George: Say, you! You used to run this column every day. How many cases of beer did you receive from your readers?

Mr. Kelly (hurriedly): Don't let's quarrel, George. Listen, when you put a joke over, and nobody laughs, what do you do?

George (loftily): That has never happened to me. When I write something funny, it goes right over. Sometimes it goes so far over that it goes over their heads. In that case, I do my own laughing and charge extra linage.

Mr. Kelly: Haven't you ever felt a yearning to write something inspiring, like "Cavalcade," or something?

George: "Cavalcade"? Never heard of it. Do you use a full pack?

Mr. Kelly: George, I'm afraid you're a lowbrow. Do you know what that is?

George: Yes. It's a thing you hang your clothes up in.

Mr. Kelly (turning away disgustedly): Pah! Call yourself a journalist?

George: Are you going away without buying me a drink?

Mr. Kelly: I have no money.

George (sorrowfully): Well, no-one can say you're not a real journalist, after that.

Mr. Kelly: Don't George yourself to drath on those free chips and peanuts.

George: You're simply Kelly-ing me!

Mr. Kelly: Goodbye, George. Don't forget that ten bucks.

INSULL'S VAIN STRUGGLE

COUNSEL REVEALS
MARKET WAR

FIGHTING AVALANCHE

Chicago, Nov. 22.

During the closing stages of the trial of Samuel Insull, his son, and fifteen others who served under them in the great Insull securities and trust business, counsel for the defence has emphatically and repeatedly denied that Insull unloaded his stock before the crash of his Utility Securities Company.

To-day, counsel declared that of the "accommodation cheques" totalling U.S.$42,000, produced by the Government, Insull had not received one dollar.

The reason for Insull's final and complete embarrassment and the collapse of his gigantic credit structure, was because the banks were outselling him at every turn.

Everyone realized that although the stock market crash came largely as a result of inflated values, prices actually fell far below their real worth in many cases. It was this situation which overrode Insull and his colleagues, counsel argued. Insull made the same mistake as Mr. John D. Rockefeller, and practically every big financial man in Wall Street, in trying to stem the falling market tide before the half of the limit of the fall was reached.—Reuter.

AMERICAN FARMER POCKETS MILLIONS

New York, Nov. 22.

Although the drought of last summer ruined thousands of American farmers, it is officially estimated that the higher prices for crops, which were a direct result of the drought, brought an actual increase in the total income of the country's agricultural community.

In other words, the loss of the drought areas was more than paid for in the normal areas' profits.

The income of American agriculture for 1934 was approximately $260,000,000, an increase of about $200,000,000 over the previous year, though the total is still below the pre-slump normal level.—Reuter.

The throwing of a small quantity of opium to a prisoner in custody outside the Kowloon Magistracy, on November 21, led to the appearance of Lau Sik, aged 31, a shoemaker, before Mr. E. W. CHINA DEMANDS FOREIGN AID

HOPELESS NARCOTIC WARFARE

TRAFFIC IN CONCESSIONS

BEYOND NANKING CONTROL

Geneva, Nov. 22.

Mr. Victor C. Hoo, China's Ambassador to Switzerland, in a statement made before the League of Nations' Opium Committee to-day, drew the attention of that body to the new series of measures recently enforced by China to combat the narcotic traffic, but urged that foreign powers must assist China in coping with the menace.

The problem in China had become more serious, he said, due perhaps to the more rigorous enforcement of anti-narcotics regulations in the Western world.

Furthermore, events in the Far East prevented China from devoting the necessary attention to this responsibility.

Mr. Hoo pointed out that the anti-narcotic campaign in China could not be limited to unilateral action. China needed the co-operation of the Powers administering leased territories and concessions where the danger was that foreign traffickers in the dangerous drugs were punished too lightly.

China, for her part, had imposed the death penalty in some charges of infraction of the narcotic laws, Mr. Hoo recalled.—Reuter.

YESTERDAY'S HELENA MAY CONCERT

Special Critique By "Allegro"

Mrs. O. P. Joce is to be congratulated on the thoroughness with which she organized yesterday's concert at the Helena May Institute. For weeks she laboured to make it a success, overlooking nothing from advance publicity to platform decorations, and she might serve as an example to organizers of similar concerts.

The programme was given by three popular artists, and consisted of plenty of first-class material: the composers comprised Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Schumann, Strauss, Medtner, Scriabin, Cyril Scott and eight others. Every item was carefully selected, and each was a gem itself; there was not one to which the most finicky of highbrows could have objected on the score of being cheap or unsuitable, and it was very rare for a Helena May audience to cast its eyes over a programme promising such a musical feast.

MORE CONTRAST NEEDED

There was only one defect in the make-up of this imposing selection of works, one which it was probably impossible for the organizer to detect until the eighty-minute programme was given in its entirety. Far too many of the items breathed an air of tranquillity, winfulness and sorrow; only too few were rollicking, gay and stimulating. On the few occasions when an effective climax was reached, as in the third of Korbay's Hungarian Melodies which ended with a dramatic "Strike him dead," the audience obviously warmed immediately and welcomed it as one welcomes a cocktail after a week on the water wagon. To say this does not detract from the merits of the water wagon any more than it belittles the beauty of any of the separate items which collectively gave the programme such a subdued and quiet atmosphere.

MRS. ANDERSON MILLER

Mrs. Anderson Miller made her first solo appearance at these concerts in a German group, two Bach arias, and three modern songs. This artist has a very easy and charming platform manner; her phrasing and diction are excellent and it is a pleasure to listen to a singer with such a well-trained voice.

I wondered why she gave the Brahms song in English in the middle of the German group, as that composer's songs lose much of their character when sung in a different language, and the other German leader proved that the soloist could sing as well in German as in English. The most charming of the group was Die Spröde by Medtner, the rendering of which was simply delightful.

Of the English songs, the most fascinating was Stanley Taylor's "Rain," which many would have liked to hear a second time, but they were all charming and exquisitely sung.

The Bach arias suited her voice best of all, but they would have been more effective earlier on the programme, before the singer had given us the Strauss and Medtner—it was a case of meat followed by soup. The psychological moment for something brightly or brilliantly occurred in this very place, following upon the Beethoven Sonata. I mention this simply to illustrate the point about the need for more contrast in this otherwise unexceptionable programme.

CAPT. O. P. JOCE

Captain O. P. Joce gave us three old English songs which were of a type in which he excels. He is at once on good terms with his audience, he feels the meaning of the words he is singing, and lets one hear them all. The whole group was most enjoyable. He might, perhaps, have given a little more rugged character to the three Hungarian folk melodies of Korbay's, whose unpoetical translations make them difficult to render in English, and, one feels, rob them of much of the dramatic nature of the originals. The third one, "Shepherd, see thy horse's foaming mane," to which I have alluded, evoked enthusiastic applause. I hope this artist will appear at other concerts; we do not get enough male singers.

LT. COL. C. H. KUHN

The lion's share of the programme fell to Lt. Col. C. H. Kuhn, who not only played a Beethoven Sonata and seven other piano pieces, but also accompanied both singers throughout (except in the Bach arias, and even then he played a flute obbligato, while Mr. Anderson Miller accompanied on the piano). Except for a brief interval this versatile musician was on the platform for an hour and twenty minutes and he seemed as fresh as ever at the close. As usual he accompanied beautifully.

He chose an early Sonata in G Major, which involved a great deal of delicate finger-work and clean playing, for which his type of execution and technique are eminently suited. He is at his best in music of this nature, though in the Schumann Romanzo he showed another side of him, the romantic side, which he has hitherto withheld from us. This, and a charming Idyl by Medtner, were the most beautifully-rendered works in his group of seven miscellaneous pieces—a group which showed marked originality in its selection. Commencing with two short Preludes by William Balnes, a practically unknown Englishman, he passed to Brahms, Schumann, Medtner and Scriabin, and ended with the jolly Paganini of Cyril Scott. Until one heard them in that order, it was hard to realize how easily each of these varied pieces would lead into the next.

The light and shade in Col. Kuhn's playing are within rather a narrow compass; while the gradations of tone in the soft register are delightful, his touch is on the whole perhaps a little too gentle and his fortissimos too much like mezzofortes. With a freer use of the pedal, he could have emphasized many of the crescendos and climaxes of the Beethoven. I felt at times that in achieving clean playing, he lost opportunities of building up tonal effects.

But it is rather hard and scarcely fair to judge his virility and tone effects from yesterday's performance, because he played on a hired piano instead of the Helena May baby grand, and though he may have felt more at ease with his instrument, it is an unfortunate fact that its tone was most disappointing beyond range of the platform. It was muffled and woolly, and though ideal for accompanying, was not equal to solo work in a fair-sized hall. Strive as he would, one felt he could not get the effects he wished in virile passages, such as the last two pages of Paganini. I hope that next time he will play on the Grolman-Steinweg.

The whole concert was thoroughly musically and it would be well if this standard were taken as a pattern in other concerts of the series.

LOCAL CRICKET NOTES

INDIANS MISCALULATION OF K.C.C. BATTING

LEAGUE POSITION EVENED BY RESULT OF THE GAME

(By R. Abbit)

It is quite evident that the I.R.C. skipper does not read my notes, or else does not agree with my theories. Not so long ago, after the Club threw away a League game against the Civil Service by holding on to two hundred runs, I ventured the opinion that there was not a side in the League, barring the Club perhaps, that was worth a hundred and seventy runs in the second innings on a Saturday afternoon, even if they had two hours to get them in. Over at the K.C.C. I am informed that the I.R.C. batted for two hours and left the K.C.C. an hour and thirty-five minutes to get a hundred and eighty—or alternatively to stop at the wickets.

I am not sure how many runs came in the last quarter of an hour of their innings, but, allowing twenty-nine, a declaration at a hundred and fifty would have been pretty safe. I rather suspect that the Indians were a bit shaken by their early reverses with the bat and failed to gauge the situation accurately. But, as has been frequently said, why all this care about one point? I know it is usually said—in an extremely disparaging tone—of the side that struggles to hold its end up at the end of the day. But to my mind it applies with much more force to the side that hangs on to the wicket in the first innings until they have so many runs that they are safe from defeat, but can only win if the other side are obliging enough to throw their wickets away in an attempt to perform the impossible.

A MISCALCULATION

By the way this is not a dig at the Indians over this game as I am quite sure they never complain when people last them out. But I do think that they miscalculated the strength of the K.C.C. batting this year. Ernie Fincher is dead off with the bat and Lay has not got his eye in yet. Hung and Mackay are also off colour compared with what they can do. Stapleton and Ramsay also have not been consistent, getting out so often when they seem just played in. However, the result of the game has evened the position in the League question.

THE PLAY

Kowloon were unfortunate not to be able to command the services of Burnett, while Zimmern was also an absentee. Robert Lee and Mackenzie came into the side, though curiously enough the latter—their only left-hand bowler—was never given even one over. I presume the idea was that he would not be a wise choice against hard hitters, but if he bowled his leg breaks—and he does make the ball turn a lot—steadily at the middle stump I am not so sure he would not do as well as the rest. Of course the fact that Minu is caddy-handed was an argument against this. The Indians started appealingly. Rum-John tried to sneak a short one to a left-handed cover-point and paid for his indiscretion, as Mackenzie made an excellent return. Sufiad tried to hook Ernie

Fincher and put up a simple catch while S. A. Jamil had a go at K. Lee before he was seeing the ball properly. Smith came on to bowl better than any one on his side and he made enough pace off the wicket to deceive Pereira and Nazarin, who both had almighty swipes with a cross bat and were bowled. A. H. Madar batted nicely and made some pretty shots through the covers, but after he had made twenty-nine, he was caught off a long hop from Willie Hung, (62—6—29). It was just eight runs later that Kowloon, in all probability, lost the match, for Minu was dropped off Smith. Had the catch been taken seven wickets would have been down for sixty instead of, as actually happened, for a hundred and thirty-six. Minu made some very fine hits and one six landed in the Club garden. (If it damaged that mustard and cress foliage is going to give me some day—I shall have a few words to say to Mr. Minu!) He was dropped again when forty, but it was the very devil of a catch.

K.C.C. STRUGGLE

Starting with the idea of going for the runs. But Teddy Fincher was caught off his glove from the only ball of Pereira's that kicked; Ramsay was brilliantly caught and bowled by Minu when he made a red-hot drive off a full-toss; and Stapleton and Mackay were both victims of smart work by Ismail behind the sticks. As Lay, after a few good shots, had hit right across once, K.C.C. with six down for forty experienced a rapid change of heart. Ernie Fincher stopped a bit and so did Bob Lee, and here the delayed declaration operated, as finally amid crepuscular gloom, the news filtered through to the Pavilion that in the middle of the ground Minu and Smith had played out time.

SMALL POINTS.

Ernie Fincher opened the K.C.C. bowling. Some years ago he was an indifferent medium to medium-fast bowler, and later took up shavies which were not very noxious save to the real ferrets. But he has come on amazingly, and obviously is doing a lot with the spin, while his direction and length have steadied down. Personally I should have given Mackenzie an over or two to start, but E. F. got his early wicket. Smith bowled as

West Indies Tour

PERSONNEL OF ENGLISH SIDE

D. C. H. Townsend (Oxford University) and Hollies (Warwickshire) have accepted invitations to accompany the M.C.C. team which is to tour the West Indies during the coming winter.

It is probable that one more player will be included, making 14 in all.

George Geary, the England and Leicestershire cricketer, has turned down a tempting offer by Burnley, the Lancashire League club.

He will take charge of Leicestershire's winter cricket school, which was inaugurated a year ago and will be in the Leicestershire side next season.

A. J. J. Christy, the South African cricketer, who has been engaged by Queensland as coach, is to be allowed to play in Australia's Sheffield Shield matches.

TOO AIR-MINDED IN SOCCER

Slashing Comment By James Hogan

Speaking at a meeting of the Fulham Rotary Club recently, Mr. James Hogan, the Fulham F.C. manager, declared that modern Association football had deteriorated, that we were training as we did in Queen Victoria's days, and that intelligence was a dire necessity in the game.

"It is not football," he went on, "it is air-ball—a case of swinging the ball about down the middle and catch it if you can."

Players sent to train on our running tracks and golf links were trying to entertain the public as first-class exponents when sometimes they were unable to chuck a ball or control the ball properly. We had been beaten by footballers on the Continent who were trained by scientific methods.

"There are people who criticise my ideas," added Mr. Hogan. "Look at Fulham's goal average. We shall not be far out at the end of the season."

Mr. Hogan is an old Soccer player who has assisted Fulham, Burnley, Bolton Wanderers and Swindon and who spent a number of years on the Continent as a football coach.

well as usual and he is a greatly improved player. I regret that this was A. H. Madar's last game in the Colony for some time as he is sailing for Bombay to-morrow.

I wish him good luck, and good cricket, and if what I hear rumoured is true may "live happily ever afterwards!" I am told the new members of the I.R.C. are sitting very well into the side, and Minu's live for seven-out shows that he is as dangerous as ever.

SECOND DIVISION

The K.C.C. second string was not successful in getting Walsh out early. He must have a very fine average in the Junior Division! Ballard, another Army player was too good for them with the ball, and they were heavily beaten.

The K.C.C. Juniors drew with I.R.C. though the latter cannot be accused of making too many runs! But I am told they were never likely to lose.

FRIENDLIES

In friendly games Elvin trundled Craigsgower out—5 for 16. Leonard alone making 72. Colledge came off at last, but the bowling was rather weak. Armstrong and Baines were chiefly responsible for the Club second putting it across the Police. The Schools are very active this season I am glad to find but it is difficult to obtain particulars.

TO MORROW'S GAMES.

The Navy are at home, the I.R.C. in the Senior League but will find it hard to save defeat. Much depends on Bramwell, if he is available. Recreio take on Kowloon and a very good game should result. Craigsgower and C.S.C.C. have a friendly, Army are resting, and I know nothing of the University, who I imagine are tied up with Examinations. Being a member I have great hopes of getting a H.K.C.C. card before Christmas.

JUNIORS

I.R.C. play Navy II in the only League match of which I know. They should win. C.S.C.C. and C.C.C. have a friendly and D.B.S. visit the Police. I have no information about the other teams.

IN MEMORIAM

ROGER CORBETT: H.K. JOCKEY

(By "Capt. Foster")

It is with the profoundest regret that I learned of the untimely death of Roger Corbett announced in the Telegraph yesterday and I am sure there are many who share that regret with me.

I knew him well, and many were the enjoyable rides we had together in the Fanling country. He was of a rather retiring disposition, but was always most jovial and companionable with his friends who were many. It was an ambition of his to ride in the Grand National at Aintree, and I do believe he would have been given a mount in March as shrewd owners and trainers had begun to realize that he was a capable and dashing rider over the fences.

He was a heavy man, normally scaling at 14 stone. To ride 10 stone 11 lbs. as he did on one occasion he had to train very hard, which explains why he was so seldom seen riding at Happy Valley.

He quickly made his mark in Hongkong as a jockey, and he was here he rode fourteen winners at Fanling. In February 1932 he performed the "hat trick" by winning the Belmont Park Handicap on The Quail, the Meadowbrook Cup on Big Ching and the Latona Handicap on Target.

His winners at Fanling were:

1930/1931 SEASON
8/2/31. — Fernleaf, Hunter's Hurdle Race.
22/3/31. — Christmas Frolic, Fanling Grand National; and Fernleaf, Governor's Cup.

1931/1932 SEASON
15/11/31. — Royal Flush, Sheung Shui Hurdle Race; and Christmas Belle, Tai Po Steeplechase.
20/12/31. — Watloo, Canberra Handicap Steeplechase; Christmas

Belle, Christmas Steeplechase; and Royal Flush, Sha Tau Kok Steeplechase.

24/1/32. — St. Moritz, Randwick Plate; and Tom, Gattwick Handicap.

14/2/32. — The Quail, Belmont Park Handicap; Big Ching, Meadowbrook Cup and, (The hat trick), Target, Latona Handicap.

20/3/32. — Daylight Eve, Long-champs Plate.

On the Flat at Happy Valley, he had very few mounts, and registered three wins all told, viz.:—1931—Armony, Carnarvonshire Stakes.

1932—Bowery Bay, Lollers Stakes; and Tiana, Canton Handicap. (Win Pari paid $229.70).

Jack McLean, the Scottish Champion, defeated Atterley, a former Australian amateur champion by 11 and 9.—Reuter.

THE THREE ST. LEGER

SOLDIER OF BRITAIN'S STAGGERING TIME

LEAGUE BADMINTON

The Club de Recreio "A" experienced little difficulty in registering their first win in the Ladies Doubles Badminton League at St. Andrew's Church Hall when the tournament opened last evening. They defeated the home team comfortably by seven sets to two. Miss M. Woolley and Miss M. Churn took games from Mrs. Souza and Miss A. Remedios and from Miss O. Ribeiro and Miss M. Basto.

The K.C.C., on the other hand, had a keen tussle against the Recreio "B", winning by the narrow margin of five games to four. Misses P. and W. Woolley were perhaps the weakest link in the Kowloon side losing their three games by 4-21, 6-21 and 6-21.

SAINTS AND RECREIO "A"
The scores in the first mentioned match were as follows:
Miss M. Woolley and Miss M. Churn (St. Andrew's) beat Mrs. Souza and Miss A. Remedios, 21-14; Miss O. Ribeiro and Miss M. Basto, 23-22; lost to Misses M. and B. Silva, 8-21.

Miss P. Gittins and Miss J. Wong (St. Andrew's) lost to Mrs. Souza and Miss Remedios, 6-21; lost to Miss Ribeiro and Miss Basto, 4-21; lost to Misses Silva, 6-21.

Miss G. A. White and Miss E. Landolt (St. Andrew's) lost to Mrs. Souza and Miss Remedios, 11-21; lost to Miss Ribeiro and Miss Basto, 11-21; lost to Misses Silva, 7-21.

K.C.C.—RECREIO "B"
The results of the K.C.C.—Recreio match were:
Mrs. A. Noronha and Miss A. Noronha (Recreio) lost to Miss M. Griffith and Mrs. Politi, 5-21; beat Miss A. Mackenzie and Miss M. Bryson, 21-14; beat Miss P. Woolley and Miss I. Woolley, 21-4.

Miss A. Ribeiro and Miss S. Remedios (Recreio) lost to Miss Griffith and Mrs. Politi, 2-21; lost to Miss Mackenzie and Miss Bryson, 7-21; beat Misses Woolley, 21-6.

League Table

P. W. L. D. For Agst. Pts.
K.C.C. 1 1 0 0 6 4 2

It is doubtful if in recent years the bookmakers have ever been so badly hit over the Cesarewitch and Cambridgehire autumn handicaps at Newmarket as they have been this year.

First there was Enfield, winner at 7 to 1 in the Cesarewitch, and then Wyckwood Abbot has won the Cambridgehire at 9 to 1—a favourite and second favourite.

Not only have the bookmakers lost on each race individually but there is also the serious part of the double bet. One of the big bookmakers in Tattersall's ring here at the latter race stated that on doubles alone his firm will have to pay out close on £50,000.

Bookmakers galore packed up after the big race. It might have been because of the other depression.

As for the punters, they are particularly happy. Many have cleared handsome sums over the winning double.

BODY-LINE RULING

APPROVAL FROM AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Nov. 22.
The M. C. C. Bodyline ruling is generally approved in Australia, where it is considered that the previous Australian rule has been adopted in principle.

Mr. Johnson, one of the Test selectors, said that the M.C.C. had belatedly followed Australia and would have been more candid if it had adopted the Australian rule exactly. The M.C.C. appeared a little ashamed to come into the open.

Mr. Kellie, manager of the 1928 touring Australian team, said it was pleasing to see that the M.C.C. had arrived at a decision which sounded the death knell of the type of bowling exploited by Jardine in 1932—a direct attack on the batsman for the purpose of intimidation.—Reuter.

RUNS BEST RACE OF CAREER AT SATURDAY'S VALLEY MEETING

(By "Captain Foster")

The three St. Leger races produced three easy victories. Soldier of Britain (Mr. Deitz) won the Hongkong St. Leger, Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) the Sub-Griffins St. Leger and Able Amazon (Mr. Butler) the Freemantle St. Leger. The wins were so convincing that I expect to see these same ponies score just as easily in their respective Champion races next month.

The time of 3-38 2/5 registered by Soldier of Britain (Mr. Deitz) in the Hongkong St. Leger simply staggered me, the more so as I did not consider the pony a stayer. Liberty Bay is the only pony that has covered a mile and three-quarters in faster time. He created the record of 3-32 4/5 on February 20, 1933 when cantering away with the Challenge Cup, and registering the following quarters:—

30 3/5—1-00 4/5—1-31 1/5—2-00 3/5—2-31 2/5—3-02—3-32 4/5.

As a St. Leger gallop, however, Soldier of Britain's performance shews up well. As a matter of interest I give the three best gallops to date in the St. Leger.

1934. Soldier of Britain 31—1-00 3/5—1-31—2-02 2/5—2-33 3/5—3-05 1/5—3-36 2/5.

1932. Liberty Bay 34 2/5—1-07 3/5—1-30 1/5—2-08 3/5—2-37 3/5—3-07 3/5.

1933. Trentbridge 31 1/5—1-01 4/5—1-33 2/5—2-04 1/5—2-36 4/5—3-05 4/5—3-38 1/5—3-37 4/5.

There was no duddy at the start for the St. Leger and, when the flag fell, Soldier of Britain (well ridden by Mr. Deitz who, in fact, was seen at his best) at once set a fast gallop. The fast pace—at an average of 31 seconds a quarter—was maintained throughout the race and Soldier of Britain won easily by four lengths. At the early stages, Gladiator (Mr. Funk) took second position, being closely followed by the rest of the field with Brilliant Star (Mr. Pan) bringing up the rear. The favourite, King's Warden, (Mr. Heard) was lying fourth to Macaroni, (Mr. Proulx) when passing the Grand Stand first time round, but he was not moving too well. Macaroni swerved badly to the outside at the five furlong post and was out of the race thereafter. At this point, Soldier of China (Mr. Pih) and Electric Star (Mr. Butler) commenced to close up and ranged alongside Gladiator on approaching the half mile post. King's Warden was a spent force at the Rock, and Electric Star, at the same time, was seen to falter. Soldier of Britain continued his fast gallop and led into the straight by about half a dozen lengths from Gladiator and Soldier of China. The last two named ponies were fighting it out for second position, and eventually dead-heated for third place.

Though late on the scene, Ribble (Mr. P. P. Botelho) came up the straight with a terrific burst of speed to pass Gladiator and Soldier of China to take second place.

Commenting on the ponies in the race, I would say that Soldier of Britain ran the best race of his career, and has shown himself to be a pony of class. He would now appear to have the Autumn Champions at his mercy as Liberty Bay, Diana Bay or Trentbridge are not eligible to compete. King's Warden ran disappointingly and never looked comfortable throughout the race. Ribble ran a great pony and revealed himself a genuine stayer. The running of Gladiator astonished me and he has shown very marked improvement since the early Spring when he could barely go a mile in good company. It transpired that Electric Star broke down when she was seen suddenly to collapse soon after passing the Black Rock. She was moving grandly at the time and I think would have finished in the picture but for her tendons giving way. I hope she will have a complete recovery and be seen in action early next year.

SUB-GRIFFINS ST. LEGER

The Sub-griffins St. Leger was won easily by Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) with Classic Hall (Mr. Heard) second, and Soldier of Fortune (Mr. Deitz) third. It was an uninteresting race to watch, and the early part of the journey was done at a slow pace, in fact the race was actually nothing more than a three furlong sprint. Little Beauty (Mr. Davis) led from the start, followed by Copper Idol (Mr. P. P. Botelho) and St. Ives (Mr. Proulx). Tiny Star (Mr. Butler) kind of (Mr. Pan) Soldier of Fortune (Mr. Heard) and Classic Hall (Mr. Heard) were immediately behind, with Sarabande (Mr. P) and Cavalcade (Mr. Pih) last. This order was practically maintained until the Black Rock, second time round, when Cavalcade went up very fast to easily assume command on entering into the straight, and to eventually win by four lengths. Classic Hall shot out of the rock, closely followed by Soldier of Fortune, at the bend for home, but neither of them could make any impression on the winner, who won with plenty in hand.

FREE-MANTLE ST. LEGER

Able Amazon (Mr. Butler) had no difficulty in winning the Freemantle St. Leger, and in which Bag Tor (Mr. Davis) finished second and Racing Heart (Mr. Heard) third. Racing Heart took the lead from the start, and was challenged by Able Amazon about half a mile from home. They galloped together for about half a furlong when Able Amazon took the lead, and went on to win without an effort. Bag Tor passed Racing Heart soon after entering the straight. High Finance (Mr. P. P. Botelho) finished fourth.

P. Botelho and Mutiny Bay (Mr. Proulx) were never prominent throughout the race.

The Meeting commenced with a mild upset as Portia (Mr. Proulx) somewhat easily accounted for Dinty (Mr. Deitz) and Empire Day (Mr. Davis) in the Hotham Handicap. Portia jumped off with the lead, and led all the way to score by three lengths. Dinty made a great effort at the top of the straight but his challenge for supremacy was not dangerous.

TAIPO HANDICAP

A good field competed for the Taiipo Handicap, and a good race resulted between Heart's Glory (Mr. Deitz) and Chief Seattle (Mr. Davis), in which the former secured the verdict by two lengths. Boxing Eve (Mr. Charles) ran most gamely and successfully resisted Great Hall (Mr. Pan) to finish in the third place.

A very easy win was scored by Young Chap (Mr. Pih) in the Fanling Handicap with Hell for Leather (Mr. Heard) and Delightful Chance (Mr. Deitz) finishing second and third respectively. The time (29 4/5-1-00-1-32 1/5) was very good and could have been improved upon. Young Chap should therefore not be neglected in the Sub-Griffin Championships next month. He is considered to be a distance pony and, perhaps, there may have been expressions of regrets that the pony did not take his chance in the Sub. St. Leger.

The surprise in the Castle Peak Handicap was the splendid performance of Brechin (Mr. P. P. Botelho) who came up very fast to make a dead-heat with Oak Bay (Mr. Proulx) for first place. High Speed (Mr. Pih) deprived King's Bounty (Mr. Davis) for third position. King's Fancy (Mr. Heard) led with Oak Bay and King's Bounty for the first two furlongs when weight began to tell, and she faded to nothing.

"PA" PETERSON SAYS...

"Jack Will Visit U.S. To Meet Rosenbloom"

"Pa" Petersen, who changes his mind almost weekly about his son's plans, states that he has accepted, on certain conditions, a contest for Jack Petersen with Maxie Rosenbloom, at Madison-square Garden, New York, for the world light-heavy-weight title.

Only a fortnight ago "Pa" declared that Jack would visit the United States for one fight only, and that with Max Baer for the heavy-weight title.

Jimmy Johnston, of the Garden, offers a match with Baer on condition that Petersen beats Rosenbloom, but can Petersen make the light-heavy-weight poundage of 12st. 7lb.?

HOME RUGBY

London, Nov. 22.

In their County Championship Rugby fixture with Glamorgan at Newport to-day, Monmouthshire notched the honours with a win of 16 points to 11.

Oxford University defeated Mr. R. V. Stanley's XV by 12 points to 7.—Reuter.

Jungle Jim (Mr. W. H. Choy) put up a smart performance to win the Shum Chun Handicap by decisively beating The Tiger (Mr. W. C. Choy) by five lengths. Daylight Eve (Mr. Wall) finished third, four lengths away, and was successful in staving off the challenge of Racing Boy (Mr. F. F. Li). I gather Racing Boy was unlucky inasmuch as he was badly placed throughout the race, and when an opening did present itself, it was too late for him to overhaul the leaders. He finished full of running.

THE BERG-MIZLER BATTLE

ONE OF THE BIGGEST UPSETS OF FORM BOXING HAS KNOWN

By GEOFFREY SIMPSON

Jack (Kid) Berg, the idol of London's East End, brought off one of the biggest upsets of form boxing has known, when at the Albert Hall, Kensington, W., he took the British lightweight championship from a roaring favourite in Harry Mizler.

Not even a referee's decision was necessary to establish Berg as champion.

After ten years' intensive battling and with all hope of a world title lost for ever, he yet proved so much the superior of Mizler that the champion was forced to abandon the struggle at the end of ten rounds.

It was an amazing triumph, yet the real story of this fight was not so much Berg's vindication of himself as the tragic fall of a brilliant young champion.

Less than a year ago Mizler had the correctness of style of a Driscoll. Yet here was a floundering, nervous tyro—his ordered boxing gone, his punch non-existent, his eye and timing hopelessly out of union.

After the first round, Berg was into him—a furious, non-stop punching machine, and nothing Mizler did could keep him away.

BATTERED CHAMPION
Mizler was simply crowded out of the fight by body punches, and though none of the blows carried knock-out force, it was a battered, sick-at-heart young champion who slumped wearily on to his stool at the close of the tenth round.

His manager took one look at him and beckoned to the referee. A few words, and the title had changed hands. Mizler had retired and to make his decision perfectly plain a towel was tossed into the ring.

What has happened to Mizler in the last ten months that his boxing should have so cruelly deserted him will be a subject of anxious consultation.

Berg's rushing, fear-nothing style is best dealt with by straight hitting that is properly timed and hurtful. But Mizler could neither hit straight nor could he inflict damage when he did land.

HANDS DAMAGED

In the dressing-room afterwards I was assured that Mizler's hands had been damaged in the second round. His left hand in fact was being bandaged.

"I could do nothing," Mizler declared. "It hurt me to hit, and I knew I was fighting a lost cause."

But had his hand been sound I still think he would have failed. Everything he did was disappointing. That flashing, stinging left which used to jolt men's heads back was a pawing thing of utter feebleness.

Berg just tore past it, and once at close range he "lost" Mizler in the fight. The latter was mercilessly pummeled and only the fact that Berg is a light puncher enabled him to keep his feet.

MIZLER "ALL IN"

At 21 years of age—just when he should be beginning to find the peak of his form—Mizler looked "all in." He was so poor that it is true to say Berg had nothing to beat.

Still, Berg did his job like the busy workman he is. At the first sniff of success he took on a new lease of life. He gave the lie to those who feared he might not stay. His legs were as firm in the tenth round as in the first, and his fighting just as fast.

All credit to him, yet in his boxing too there were plain indications of deterioration. He was missing badly at long range, and not until he slipped through Mizler's guard and was faced by the width of the champion's body was he able to score with certainty.

Thus, after all these years, Berg is at last a champion of his country, and even the knowledge that he used to fight better could not mar his happiness.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

When DAN BLECKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed by a criminal, he is determined to solve the murder. Morden had been assigned to learn all he could about FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported Cathay had been arrested. Later it was proven that the man arrested, giving the name of Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS, was an impostor. The Blade published a retraction.

Then Morden is found dead and a few hours later comes news that Cathay is dead—possibly poisoned.

Sidney Griff undertakes the case. He calls on Cathay's doctor and his lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Later Griff goes to see MRS. CATHAY. When he tells her of Morden's death she faints. Griff leaves, saying to the taxi driver, "Get me to a public telephone."

CHAPTER XV

The cab driver drove at high speed down the winding road which led from the big Cathay home to the nearest thoroughfare. He pulled in before a drug store and held the door of the car open.

Sidney Griff entered the drug store, put through a long distance call to Dan Blecker of The Blade.

"The woman in the case," he said, "has employed Carl Racine of the Detective Bureau. She ordered up her car for him, to take him to the city. She is obviously very much frightened. It would probably be advisable for you to have two of your best men waiting along the boulevard. I believe that you are familiar with her car and can give the men a description of it. Doubtless some of your reporters know Racine personally. When he passes have them drop him in behind and see if they can follow him. I think he has been sent upon a mission of the greatest importance—a mission which requires some skill and daring to handle. Racine was hostile when I met him."

Blecker's reply was directly to the point.

"When did they leave?" he asked.

"Approximately 15 minutes ago."

"The road will be covered," Blecker said. "We have just received assurances from the authorities at Riverview that an autopsy will be ordered."

Griff gave a low whistle.

"You must," he said, "have exerted considerable pressure."

"We did," said Blecker, "but we received unexpected reinforcements from a confidential communication made to the authorities by one of the physicians in the case. It represented a complete change of attitude on his part since an earlier interview. I was wondering if, perhaps, your presence in Riverview had been responsible for the physician's change of attitude."

Sidney Griff laughed.

"My presence in Riverview," he said, "has been responsible for a lot of things. I'm playing human checkers. I'll see you this evening."

Smiling, he slid the receiver gently back on the hook. His face was alert, his eyes narrowed, wary and watchful.

There were two parchment-shaded lamps burning in the room but the glow they gave was subdued. Sidney Griff, attired in lounging suit and long woolen bath-robe, stared into the spiraling smoke from his cigarette. Across from him, Dan Blecker seemed very much excited.

"Anything about Decker?" he asked. "Any news for us?"

Blecker looked mildly surprised.

"I didn't talk with her personally," he said. "The reporters gathered the information. She is, I understand, blonde, blue-eyed, and pretty—not outstandingly beautiful, you understand, but pretty."

"Go ahead," Griff said. "I want to know everything I can about her. I want to get a complete picture."

"Let me tell you first about the apartment and about Esther Ordway," Blecker said.

Griff once more extended his right arm, with the fingers outstretched, seemed to be groping his way through a maze of intricate thoughts.

"All right, go on," he said almost dreamily.

"Alice Lorton said this Ordway woman had mysteriously disappeared without leaving any word. She'd taken a suitcase and some clothes. After a couple of days passed and Alice Lorton didn't hear anything from her missing friend, she notified the police and the Bureau of Missing Persons."

"We'd never have bothered with it, only for what you said, and the fact that she must have disappeared at about the same time Morden was murdered. We sent a fingerprint expert up to the apartment. He used a pass key. No one knew he went in there. He developed latent prints in places where a rule visitor might have left fingerprints on ash trays, on the brass bedstead, on door knobs and places like that. We had Morden's fingerprints on file at the police, you know."

"And, by God, we found some of Morden's fingerprints. There can't be any mistake. He was in that apartment."

"Have you told the police?"

"No, we're keeping it under cover until you tell us to release it. We figure we may be able to do better playing it under cover."

"What's this Ordway woman like?"

Griff asked, dropping his hand to the arm of the chair, his eyes closed, his manner that of one who is completely relaxed.

"From the description we get, she's 22, medium sized, brunette with black eyes. She used lots of makeup, and there was more or less mystery about her. Alice Lorton says she doesn't know very much about the girl; that they shared the apartment, and the girl always paid her share of the rent promptly; that she was supposed to be out of work and looking for a job, but she always seemed to have plenty of money."

"Not a very good description," Griff said. "How about photographs?"

"That's the funny thing," Blecker said. "We can't seem to get hold of a photograph. There's just a chance that the girl played forsy and took all of her photographs with her. Alice Lorton says she was certain there was a snapshot or two in a photograph album the girl had, and a framed picture that was on the dresser, but the girl seems to have taken these things with her."

"Pretty smart," Griff said.

"I'll say it was plenty smart," Blecker agreed.

"Knowing anything else?" asked Griff.

"Yes, we covered Carl Racine. It was a cinch to follow him. Apparently he didn't suspect anything and the boys didn't have any difficulty getting on his trail. Now, that's an angle we can't figure out. He's trying to find a Mrs. Blanche Malone. He's prowling around through the registrations, city directories, and has gone to the light and gas companies, Charles Morden kept his expense trying to find out if they've connected a meter for a Mrs. Blanche Malone any where in the city."

(To Be Continued.)

The little black notebook in which Charles Morden kept his expense account comes to light in the next instalment.

ROYAL WEDDING GIFTS VIEWED

LONDON CHEERS HAPPY COUPLE

London, Nov. 22. A large crowd gathered outside Buckingham Palace and cheered Princess Marina and the Duke of Kent when they drove with the King and Queen to St. James' Palace this afternoon, to view their wedding presents. These make a wonderful display and include gifts from many countries. British people have already contributed over £30,000 as a wedding gift in the form of donations towards the rebuilding fund of St. George's Hospital, of which the Duke is President. Money has been received at the hospital from all over Britain, the sums ranging from large cheques down to penny stamps.—British Wireless.

RUSH TO MEET RED ADVANCE

CANTON TROOPS FOR FRONTIER

Canton, Nov. 23. Heavy Cantonese forces are being rushed to Yungyuen, to the south-east of Suiyuan with the object of meeting a new Red menace from the Kiangsi border, as it is learned that another powerful group of Reds is moving in a south-westerly direction after their abandonment of Hui-chang, their last stronghold in eastern Kiangsi. A new defence line is being constructed around Yungyuen.—Central News.

BOY DIES OF BURNS

Through an oil lamp being upset, Tang Kai, the six-year-old son of a villager at Kap Shek Mei, in the Shamshuipo district, was fatally injured when his clothes caught fire. The incident occurred at 6.30 p.m. yesterday. The fire spread to a bed but was put out by the combined efforts of the inmates before much more damage was caused. The victim was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards from shock and burns.

HEIRESS GUARDED

FIGURED IN COURT FIGHT

New York, Nov. 22. It was revealed to-day that private detectives are guarding little Gloria Vanderbilt, ten-year-old American heiress, day and night. Gloria, who was the principal figure in the recent court fight for her custody between her mother and her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, is on the Whitney estate at Old Westbury, Long Island.

The child is not being guarded against her mother, Mrs. Whitney makes it clear, but because of a threatening letter received by the household recently. Kidnapping was not threatened, but the letter hinted at a plan to do the child physical harm. It was presumably written by a madman. Little Gloria, who some day will come into an estate of several millions of dollars, has been placed in the custody of her aunt, Mrs. Whitney, for five days a week. Her mother will have the child for week-ends only, according to the ruling of a New York court. But, if it is found necessary to keep the little girl under constant guard it will probably be impossible for her to visit back and forth between her mother and her aunt, at least for the present.—Reuter.

LADY MOTORISTS SUMMONED

MISS PANSY NG CASE DISMISSED

Mrs. R. L. Withington, driver of private car No. 578, was summoned before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for having left her car unattended from 12.38 p.m. to 12.50 p.m. in Queen's Road Central, outside the King's Dispensary, on November 15.

Defendant admitted the summons, and a fine of $5 was imposed.

Miss Pansy Ng, driver of private car No. 2938, was discharged with a caution on a summons for having failed to drive with due care and caution in Des Voeux Road Central, on November 3. It will be recalled that evidence was taken last week in connection with the summons, and Mr. Aaron Landau, the complainant, and a ricksha coolie gave evidence. The summons was taken out following a collision between the defendant's car and a ricksha in which Mr. Landau was travelling.

Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, appearing for the defendant, submitted that on the evidence produced he did not see that any offence was committed. There were two discrepancies in the stories of the complainant and the coolie, the first in regard to complainant's jumping out of the ricksha, and the other in regard to the conversation with the defendant. Mr. Landau's wife had been severely injured in a similar accident some time ago, and he would therefore be biased in a case like this.

Mr. Kemble submitted that the car crossed in front of the ricksha, in order to pull up, and never touched the ricksha at all. The coolie, however, to avoid a collision, suddenly swerved to one side. The defendant's behaviour afterwards bore that out, because she did not stop the car but proceeded some distance before stopping, and was very surprised at the suggestion that she had committed an offence at the time.

Mr. Schofield agreed that there were discrepancies in the evidence, and under the circumstance discharged defendant with a caution.
